Cold Sends Residents from Morehouse Homes

Low natural gas pressure, caused by the heavy consumption in the homes, have caused the closing of two schools and a large number of homes, left with no or a small amount of gas pressure.

The kindergarten class at the Airport school was closed today, and will continue to be closed during the subzero weather.

The Morehouse elementary school was closed today because of need of gas in the homes was too great to take care of the needs. A number of residents sought relief from the cold at the fire station.

Cause of the gas shortage in the present cold wave, according to a school official today, was that the pressure was not great enough to keep the furnaces going.

The morning period from 5 to 8:30 a.m. in the homes, causes the pressure to be low, when cooking and heating is at its heighth.

A report from East Prairie today was that about 100 persons called in that their homes lacked sufficient heat.

Many Nursing Homes Are Quitting Medicare or Refuse New Patients

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of the nation's nursing homes have quit the medicare program. Many others still in the program refuse to accept new medicare patients.

A nationwide Associated Press survey disclosed that more than 500 nursing homes have withdrawn since extended care provisions of the federal health care program began three years ago. In the last six months alone, Social Security Administration figures show, 295 extended care facilities have dropped medicare voluntarily.

Some of this impact is canceled, however, by enrollment of newly buiilt facilities in the booming nursing home industry.

Government officials trace the industry's discontent to a crackdown on misuse and overuse of medicare's benefits.

Not so, say nursing home administrators. Their dissatisfaction results, they contend, from retroactive denial of benefits, staggering paperwork and low rates.

The AP survey turned up no instances of elderly patients being suddenly turned out of nursing homes. But many administrators said their homes no longer accept medicare patients, though still qualified under the program.

"The national trend of nursing homes to drop out of medicare's extended care program" was cited this month by Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, when he launched congressional hearings on nursing home problems.

But a Social Security Administration spokesman said, "there's no trend. The number of homes in the program goes up and down."

Although 295 homes quit the program in six months, this official said, others signed up so the net loss was only 50—from 4,900 certified extended care facilities July 1, to 4,850 Jan. 1.

There are about 25,000 nursing homes in the nation, but not all can qualify for medicare's extended care program because of such requirements as around-the-clock licensed nursing care.

Medicare does not pay for custodial nursing home care. Rather, it was designed to pay for short-term stays in nursing homes for patients recuperating after discharge from a hospital.

To qualify, a patient must require skilled nursing care on a continuing basis. He also must enter an extended care facility (ECF) within two weeks after leaving a hospital where he had remained at least three consecutive days.

On a typical day, 80,000 elderly nursing home patients across the country are having their bills paid by medicare. The average stay in a nursing home under medicare is 50 days. The average monthly claim is $365.

Medicare pours about $450 million a year into nursing homes, but this is less than half of the more than $1 billion paid nursing homes annually by medicaid, the state administered, largely federal financed program of medical care for low income people of all ages.

Medicaid, in general, pays the bills of elderly patients who need less intensive, but longerterm, nursing home care.

In a few states, medicaid is more controversial than medicare. In Ohio, the number of nursing homes participating in medicare increased 16 during 1969 and now total 212. But nursing home operators in parts of the state are talking of boycotting medicaid in a dispute over benefit levels.

Medicaid isn't worth a hoot," said Rowland Lutz, administrator of a large Columbus home. "We do not take medicaid patients." In contrast, Lutz said, "medicare is not a problem with us."

But hundreds of other nursing homes view medicare—not medicaid—as causing bigger headaches.

Senate Delays Veto Showdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today delayed a veto showdown with President Nixon by returning to the House, for settlement of a side issue, a disputed, $19.7 billion appropriation bill.

The budget-raising health and education funds which drew the White House veto warning were not at issue; both Senate and House have agreed on $1.26 billion in spending that Nixon opposes.

On a 47 to 40 roll call vote, the Senate backed Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., in his demand that Congress earmark for specific programs the nearly $2 billion that the bill appropriates for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The House version left it to the poverty agency to allocate money to its various programs.

The appropriations amount is not involved.

Now it will be up to the House to either accept the Senate earmarking terms, or reject them and seek a new negotiating conference on that issue alone.

The crucial vote on the longdelayed appropriation bill was the 74 to 17 tally by which the Senate Tuesday approved the spending levels Nixon has challenged as inflationary.

Escape Brief for Kansas Kidnap-Slayer Suspect

OLATHE, Kan. (AP)—Thomas Lamb, held in Johnson County jail on charges of murder and kidnaping, escaped with the aid of a trusty early today and both men were captured at La Cygne, Kan., 40 miles south of here.

Lloyd Midyett, 52, an ememployee in the powerhouse of the Kansas School for the Deaf at Olathe, was forced to accompany the pair in his station wagon but was released unharmed when the car was halted by officers.

Radio reports from the scene said highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers took Lamb into custody as soon as their auto was halted. The reports said the trusty, Patrick McKey, 18, remained in the car with the hostage briefly, then released the hostage, but remained in the car holding a gun.

The reports said officers and Lamb talked McKey into surrendering.

Lamb, 28, was arrested last Friday on a charge of kidnaping Miss Patricia Ann Childs, 18, in Overland Park the day before. He was captured shortly after the girl's father paid $3,500 ransom.

Subsequently, Lamb was charged with the murder in December of Miss Karen Sue Kimmerly, a student at the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

McKey, of Wyandotte County, was being held for failure to show in court on a charge of drunken driving. He had been in jail since Jan. 6.

First Newsmen Allowed Inside Biafra See Evidences of Hunger, Looting and Rape

OWERRI, Nigeria (AP) — The first newsmen allowed inside fallen Biafra saw famished refugees fighting for food, looting by Nigerian soldiers and heard several firsthand accounts of women being raped by victorious Nigerian troops.

The farther the press party went inside former Biafran territory, the worse the conditions of hunger, homelessness and confusion became.

Everywhere refugees were on the road, teetering all their worldly goods on their heads, hunting lost husbands and children, trying desperately to change their Biafran money into Nigerian pounds to buy what food was available at little impromptu roadside markets.

A young British doctor, working in Nigeria less than two weeks, leaned his head against an ambulance and wept with rage.

"I've had Lugers stuck in both my ears," he sobbed. "My life has been threatened umpteen times by soldiers wanting to steal my trucks and ambulances. I'm not a doctor, I'm a bloody copper (policeman)."

The doctor said he had just returned from an open field where 80 to 100 wounded Biafran soldiers were "lying in their own puss and excrement, waiting for treatment that never arrived.

"They bloody well ought to be dead," he continued. "Now I've got to go try and fix them up. Don't go near them unless you've got clothespins on your nose."

The doctor, from Colchester, would only give his name as "Doctor Phil." Without naming the unit, he said the soldiers on duty in the area of the pediatric hospital at Okporo were "such monsters" he never let the nurses go anywhere without an escort, "especially white ones—the native nurses can always go bush if something happens."

The young girls are afraid to come out of the bush, they are terrified of what will happen," Ibo novelist Cyprian Ekwensi told the newsmen. "There is now a saying among them: 'Stay in hiding or you will be conscripted into the army.'"

"My sister Bibi was taken off and raped by the soldiers," a university student named Paul Ohagwa said. Two Biafran nurses who would only give their names as Theresa and Caroline said they were raped several times as they passed through roadblocks trying to make their way out of the bush.

In Port Harcourt, recaptured by federal troops 17 months ago and now a state capital, the state governor entertained top brass at his daughter's wedding feat. But just a few miles away. Ibo refugees faced death. About 600 were crammed into the tiny Niger Maternity Home, many of them lying motionless in the hot sun amid vomit, dust and flies.

A group of British construction workers took up a collection to find food for them. They said three to four died daily.

"The villages are the worst off," said an Irish missionary, Father Eammon McMahon, surrounded by hundreds of refugees begging for Nigerian pounds in the shell-pocked main square of Owerri. "They have no food, their money is useless and we have no way of getting anything to them."

The once proud Ibos, who through education and ambition had moved farther up the ladder of progress than Nigeria's 200 other tribes, were reduced to begging, with outstretched hands by the roadside, and fighting and clawing at each other when a food bag fell off a truck or broke at a feeding station.

Such scenes were repeated endlessly in the newsmen's 150-mile tour of Ibo land. For all Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon's good intentions, it did not seem that the Nigerian army and the government relief machinery could begin coping with the problem.

Uli airstrip, except for a few potholes, seemed to be in excellent condition. But it was deserted save for the rusting carcasses of at least six planes bombed in their parking bays in the final federal siege.

A Nigerian captain in charge of guard detail at the ghost strip was outraged at questions of using Uli strip now.

"It was built by the rebels," he said. "We would never think of using it. We will build a better airfield."

NATIONAL BLOOD DONOR MONTH

If you want to observe this month as something besides January, you can celebrate it as National Blood Donor Month. It has been so proclaimed by President Nixon in recognition of the vital role of the volunteer blood donor.

This was requested by the American Association of Blood Banks with endorsements by the American National Red Cross, American Medical Association, American Hospital Association and other organizations interested in a safe and adequate supply of blood in every community.

The importance of the volunteer blood donor cannot be overestimated. Surgery and therapy require more and more blood. A wire service item noted that 30 pints of blood were used in an effort to save the life of writer Jack Kerouac, who died recently in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Nearly every big hospital has a few children with leukemia or grave forms of anemia, who are being kept alive by blood transfusions. In all we are now using blood at the rate of 6.5 million pints per year with at least 80% of this coming from the volunteer unpaid donors, who are being honored this month.

Besides saving millions in medical costs, voluntary donations greatly reduce the hazards of infection, in transfusions; there is no reason for a volunteer to misrepresent his medical history.

We join Dr. Enold Dahlquist of Providence, Rhode Island, president of the American Association of Blood Banks, in urging everybody to join in observing this month.

If you are in good health, and between the ages of 21 and 66, you should join these modern heroes by becoming a donor yourself. Just call your local blood bank or collection center for an appointment.

A ladybug love-in began when an employee of the Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission and a farmer friend decided to import a supply from California to test their effectiveness in controlling insects harmful to young milo. Others joined in, the ladybugs were obtained and released and after six weeks, most farmers agreed the experiment was a success.

One farmer, after releasing two gallons of ladybugs in a 50-acre milo filed badly infested with greenbugs, reported his plants were nearly free of pests three days later.

One of the largest users of ladybugs distributed the beetles at the rate of one gallon per 15 acres at a cost of about 75 cents an acre. After viewing his successful reduction of plant pests, he asked, "Why pay $2.50 per acre to have milo sprayed when you can accomplish the job with 75 cents worth of ladybugs?" Most users also noted that the ladybug is superior to chemical pesticides in that the latter, while killing the target insect, also eliminates all of its natural enemies. UGLY, UGLY WORDS -- FROM THE PAST

More than a half-century ago, following World War I, when Germany was torn with internal strife, a raid on Communist headquarters in Dusseldorf resulted in the seizure of files labeled "Communist Rules for Revolution."

These rules have been reprinted many times in many publications, but memories are all short in this space age and we feel that no amount of coverage is too great to afford this disturbing, thought provoking subject.

Following are these so-called rules dictated by some long dead Communist -- read these words and ask yourself if it be possible that these rules are presently being used to hasten the death of our democracy:

1. Corrupt the young; get them away from religion. Get them interested in sex. Make them superficial; destroy their ruggedness.

2. Get control of all means of publicity, and thereby get people's minds off their government by focusing their attention on athletics, sexy books, plays and other trivialties.

3. Divide people into hostile groups by constantly harping on controversial matters of no importance.

4. Destroy the people's faith in their natural leaders by holding the latter up to contempt, ridicule and obloquy.

5. Always preach true democracy, but seize power as fast and as ruthlessly as possible.

6. By encouraging government extravagance, destroy its credit; produce fear of inflation, rising prices and discontent.

7. Foment strikes in vital industries; encourage civil disorders and foster a lenient and soft attitude on the part of the government toward these disorders.

8. By specious argument cause a breakdown of the old moral virtues; honesty, sobriety, continence, faith in the pledged word, ruggedness.

9. Cause the registration of all firearms on some pretext, with a view of confiscation of them and leaving the population helpless.

ORGANIZING THE CONSUMER

The fourth annual Consumer Assembly, sponsored by the Consumer Federation of America, opens in Washington beginning Wednesday (Jan. 14).

Some of the consumer protective legislation now on the books might well be described as a case of deceptive packaging. Consumer advocates charge these laws often don't accomplish what they are intended to do.

One law that needs reassessing in their view is the 1966 Fair Packaging and Labeling Law, regarded as the first major national consumer law. An official of the Consumer Federation of America told Editorial Research Reports that "the law has never been enforced with vigor, and enough money has never been made available for enforcement."

A highlight of the Consumer Assembly will be hearing by a Senate Commerce subcommittee on the law's effectiveness. While the 1966 Act has produced some improvement in labeling information, important package reforms (such as doing away with fractional weights and reducing the size of a package if its contents are reduced) are left to the voluntary goodwill of the industry.

Writing of the burst of consumer legislation in the 1960s, Ralph Nader commented: "Something was done and will be done because the laws are on the books. But you can't grow a rose on top of a garbabe can."

The performance of federal agencies responsible for the safety of what people eat and drink offers little reassurance. Within the last year, one or another of these agencies has been accused of ineptitude, conflicts of interest or dereliction of duty. A report made in mid - 1969 by a panel of Food and Drug Administration officials estimated that two million to ten million Americans became ill every year from eating contaminated food. The panel concluded that the agency was "not equipped to cope with the challenge" of protecting the public from bad food, drugs and cosmetics.

Sensing the growing political appeal of consumer affairs, Congress added $341,000 for enforcement of the truth - in - packaging law to the now - stalled Health, Education and Welfare fiscal 1970 appropriations bill. President Nixon, who all but ignored the issue during his campaign, also has moved to capture the support of the voting consumer. Last fall he proposed making the Office of Consumer Affairs permanent and called for creation of a consumer protection division in the Justice Department. These reorganization bills remain in committee.

Consumerism is filtering down to the neighborhood supermarket and consumer protection agencies are popping up everywhere. Ten years ago, reports the CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR, no state had a consumer - affairs office. Now, 33 states have them -- with more on the way.

But it is no longer a matter of whether the large - economy sized package of soap powder contains more than the giant jumbo size. Consumerism is reaching out to include industrial safety, insurance availability as well as costs and environmental control. Nevertheless, consumers are showing signs of increasing frustration at what they feel is their lack of representation in a complex business - oriented society.

Business is facing "a consumer gap" paralleling the generation gap confronting American society at large, warns Herbert M. Cleaves, senior vice president of General Foods. The big question, however, is whether it can be bridged by changing a few labels.

NEW YORK (AP) — These are the doldrum days of the year when the banners of the spirit droop at halfstaff.

The slush in the streets matches the slush in man's mind.

The daily routine chafes. A fellow has the uneasy feeling he is slowly being covered with mold, and everyone wishes he were somewhere else and doing something else.

Well, why not? That's what daydreams are for—to let us travel in imagination to where we want to go and do what we want to do.

For example, all you have to do is lean back in a swivel chair, close your eyes, and in a trice you are—

Sitting in a vast elephant graveyard in Africa surrounded by millions of dollars worth of ivory tusks, all yours for the taking.

Peering into the lovesick eyes of a beautiful veiled Arabian princess as she strums a silver lute and sings you sad songs of desire.

Speaking to a joint session of Congress in behalf of the vast silent majority of Americans, who have chosen you to be their spokesman.

Being told sorrowfully by Gen. Custer you can't accompany him on his march to the Little Big Horn, as he must leave someone trustworthy behind to mind the store.

Stealing a huge ruby from the navel of a stone idol while chanting natives hail you as their new No. 1 god.

Opening a letter from the White House and finding it contains an invitation to dine with Pat and Dick next Wednesday. "P.S., don't forget to bring along your thinking cap," writes Pat. "We plan to play charades later."

Piloting an unknown young thoroughbred to a seesaw victory in the Kentucky Derby that hangs up a track record.

Saving a stricken young seaman's life aboard a submarine in a daring operation during which you give him two quarts of your own blood while cutting out his appendix.

Having Brigitte Bardot write and ask if you'll be her pen pal so she can improve her English. The snapshot she encloses proves she has no need to improve her body English.

Receiving a medal for valor for singlehandedly saving Ft. Knox from being overrun by a sudden attack by Mafia hoodlums. "And here's a couple of gold bars, too," says the commander. "You certainly earned them—and the nation won't miss them."

Dreaming you've bought control of the firm and telling the boss that now he works for you.

However, if the boss comes by and catches you dreaming hat particular daydream, you may find yourself back in the doldrums real quick—and with no swivel chair you can any longer call your own.

NO WONDER HE'S SICK!

Eating The Seed Corn

Some years abck there was a "Pat and Mike" story about socialism. Mike was saying that if Pat had two horses, Pat should give him one. The same was true with two mules, two cows, two goats, etc. Each time Pat grunted in understanding and agreement. Finally, when Mike for-instanced that two pigs should be shared, Pat stopped him.

"But Mike," he said, "you know I've got two pigs."

Before the public's sense of the ridiculous began to atrophy, that simple story was sufficient to remind all and sundry that socialism was essentially foolish and opposed to human nature.

Then, along came John Dewey and the collectivists of "progressive education." The trend they began was accelerated when the National Education Association endorsed the "conclusions and Recommendations" of the American Historical Association in 1934. These conclusions and recommendations were described by the British socialist Harold Laski as "an educational program for a socialist America."

Within a few years, the "deficit spending'. theory of another Briton, John Maynard Keynes, had been enthusiastically adopted by the Federal government. Although this theory is diametrically opposite to the policies which had made this nation the envy of the whole world for its material blessings - and freedoms, deficit spending has remained the dominant policy of our Federal government financing, without interruption.

On the reasons for wide acceptance of the Keynes theory and its ultimate consequences, Ludwig von Mises, perhaps the world's most respected economist, had this to say in his Planning For Freedom: "The unprecedented success of Keynesianism is due to the fact that it provides an apparent justification for the 'deficit spending' policies of contemporary governments. It is the pseudo-philosophy of those who can think of nothing else than to dissipate the capital accumulated by previous generations. . . .

"Notwithstanding all the passionate fulminiations of the spokesmen of governments, the inevitable consequences of inflationism and expansionism as depicted by the 'orthodox' economists are coming to pass. And then. . . people will discover that Keynes did not teach us how to perform the 'miracle of turning a stone into bread', but the not at all miraculous procedure of eating the seed corn."

LABOR UPMANSHIP

Little by little, workingmen are winning the struggle against their capitalist exploiters. Consider these recent gains in the area of time spent now working.

In Canada, a recent settlement gives Toronto Harbor Commissioners' employes time - and - a - half pay for vacations. The rationale, evidently, is that most poeple exert at least half again as much energy relaxing as they do when they're on the job.

Getting a paid holiday on your birthday is a common practice in many shops, but one union in an eastern state has now written an annual "Moon Day" holiday -- July 21 -- into its new contract in recognition of the accomplishment of Appollo 11.

In all justice, however, the holiday ought to rate double - time pay because the first manned landing on the moon actually took place on a Sunday.

DELIVERING NECESSITIES

The necessities for human life are many. Republic USA has been so successful in allowing our citizens to acquire the necessities and luxuries of life that we forget how big a job this is. We become impatient, forgetting that for most of the rest of the world, even the necessities are only wished - for dreams, while luxuries are unheard of, at least the luxuries we know.

Because our free way of life has allowed us to provide these necessities for ourselves, and to share much with those in other lands less free, and therefore less fortunate, our thougtless ones forget that necessities of life do not come free of effort.

A recital of the most constructive ways to meet the ordinary necessities of life may provide the solutions for our continued existence. Perpetuating the life of free Republic USA is vital to all, if slavery and the dark misery of famine and want are to be kept from our shores.

Any apparently sensational success, or promised success, which involves the liquidation of our Republic can only be a dismal failure. Its destruction means the destruction of human freedom in favor of communism, which never has been able to provide the necessities of life for its enslaved peoples.

Many feel that the life of our Republic can be redeemed only through crusades in which many will lend their talents, crusades which will command dedication and inspire the apathetic. Love of county is a requisite to our survival. It is a better, more noble path than destructive hatred, regardless of opinions which claim love of country is fatal to individual or organized initiative. It does require dedication sufficient to overcome criticism from opponents of freedom. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- Jewish - American leaders are up in arms over a statement, attributed to Secretary of State William Rogers behind closed doors, that his Middle East concessions have their approval and that Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir's sharp objections were intended strictly for home consumption.

Rogers's alleged remards leaked out of a private meeting of the U.S. Infromation Agency's Advisory Commission. He was quoted as saying that "the American - Jewish leaders understand our position and approve it" and that Golda Meir's public response "does not reflect her government's point of view."

Rogers's words were reported immediately to Jewish leaders in New York City, who checked with one another and called Mrs. Meir in Israel. She told them bluntly that Rogers's statement was "false."

Since they also could find no leading Jews who had approved of the Middle East concessions, they asked every important Jewish organization to send representatives to Washington January 24-25 to join in a public portest against the State Department's wavering on the Middle East.

Jewish feelings are running so high that several depositors withdrew their money from the Chase Manhattan Bank after press reports ascribed a backstage role to David Rockefeller, the bank president, in guiding Middle East policy. Pressure was also brought upon New York State's Comptroller Arthur Levitt and New York City's Comptroller Abe Beame to withdraw public funds from the bank.

--WHAT HAPPENED--

The backstage developments that led to the State Department concessions, meanwhile, should be put on the reord to clear up misunderstandings. Here is what happened:

Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, after painstaking negotiations, agreed upon guidelines for a Middle East settlement. These were supposed to be given to Gunnar Jarring, The UN mediator, who would use the Soviet - American accord to bring pressure upon the Israelis and Egyptians to settle their differences.

Tentative arrangements had been made to bring the Israeli and Egyptian delegations into the same hotel, with Jarring shuttling back and forth between their rooms as a go - between. Both Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad had given Rogers their approval of these arrangements.

At this point, Rogers made the first public move by urging the concessions that he thought had been settled by Sisco and Dobrynin. The Secretary of State expected the Russians, who had made their share of concessions, to join in pushing the joint Soviet - American solution.

Instead, the Russians pulled a double - cross and delivered a note to the State Department, renouncing almost every agreement that Sisco and Dobrynin had reached.

Thus the hope of a Middle East settlement, like so many things peopie think they see on the desert, turned out to be a mirage. The Russians, apparently, prefer to continue the controlled tension that grips the Middle East today.

Note: as for David Rockefeller's role, he paid private calls in the Middle East upon Egypt's President Nasser and Jordan's King Hussein.

--ROCKEFFELLER'S ROLE--

After his return, Rockefeller happened to have a previous White House appointment to discuss Latin - American affairs with President Nixon. Rockefeller took advantage of the visit also to report on his talks with the Middle East leaders.

He told the President, for example, that Nasser had expressed unhappiness over his deteriorating relations with America, had declared his preference to work with the U.S. than with Russia, and had indicated an interest in a Middle East settlement that would open the Suez Canal and Gulf of Aqaba to Israel.

The President then told Rockefeller about Rogers's planned public statement, which had been under preparations for five weeks and already had been mimeographed. Rockefeller's report, therefore, obviously had no effect on the Rogers statement.

--HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES--

Sen. Ted Kennedy is deeply upset over the abuse his wife Joan has been receiving as a result of the Mary Jo Kopechne tragedy. While Joan was in the hospital to have her tonsils removed, a troubled Ted told friends, she received several nasty telephone calls ... The Cabinet was kept in session for more than two hours the other day until the distinguished participants began to squirm on their hard chairs. Finally President Nixon announced: "We are cutting all other budgets, but one thing I am going to fight for in the White House budget is to replace thses hard chairs."..The question came up at the Cabinet meeting of improving the interrelationship between Cabinet members. Agreeing, the President invited Cabinet members with recommendations for the Supreme Court to send their ideas "to John." This was a mischievous reference to Attorney General John Mitchell, whose recommendation of Judge Clement Haynsworth Backfired ... Contrary to press speculation, President Nixon didn't ask Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., to withdraw from the California Senate Race during their recent White House visit. Although they discussed the campaign briefly, Murphy took up most of the time urging the President to follow a stronger pro - Israel line in the Middle East.

MORE SHOOTING?

Yablonski's Supporters Ignore Other Violence

Washington, D.C.: -- There now are at least 1,000 special federal agents concentrating on the "Yablonski affair", as my British broadcasting boileagues, with whom I've just talked by satellite, call the ghastly triple murder.

The British, the Japanese, the Australians, the newsmen the world over, are intrigued now and the best which can be told them as they telephone is that there is a big six-day hole in the last week of the lives of the rebellious miner.

That week that was is the Churchillian "riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

It can be reported that on Sunday, Dec. 29, 1969, Jock Yablonski telephoned his intimate friend and union campaign manager, Mike Trbovich, and asked him to drive to a funeral parlor the following Tuesday. Mr. Trbovich, who tells me he had seen "Jock" "every day since May 29" had other business and did not go.

Mr. Trbovich also tells me that he had visited the Yablonski home "every day" since May. But after Tuesday, Dec. 30, until the mysterious report of dead bodies in the Clarksville house - turned - mausoleum, no one heard from the Yablonskies. Why? Where were they? Why did they not rush here to the District of Columbia in which there has never been a mob or labor killing?

We may soon know. Mike Trbovich and Yablonski's attorney, Joe Rauh, say they'll never stop searching, pressuring and agitating. But their understandable emotion will only obscure the investigations.

The FBI now has talked with officials of the United Mine Workers (UMW,) attorneys, trustees and other specialists. The Bureau men are concentrating in Pittsburgh and are reviewing almost every minute of the lives of the three who were murdered.

The Labor Dept.'s special bureau, headed by Assistant Secretary of Labor Bill Usery, at whom Diogenes could have made his first and last stop, has 200 men in the field checking the UMW's 1,604 locals -- 800 of which are large and will require time - consuming auditing. It should be noted, too, that a Labor Dept. probe means investigation of UMW President Tony Boyle's charges against Jock Yablonski as well as counselor Joe Rauh's allegations. And there are serious charges on both sides.

This chase now is as heavily saturated with special federal and state agents as the pursuit of the slayer of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. The political pressure on the government, the White House and the Cabinet is unbelievable. This is a super man hunt -- if the killers can be deemed human. Rarely have so many U. S. Senators and members of the House zeroed in and demanded action. Bluntly they are accusing the government of collusion and culpability.

There is for example, New Jersey's U. S. Senator Harrison Williams Jr., head of the Senate Labor subcommittee. He wants a hearing. He wants Secretary of Labor George Shultz to testify immediately. Yet this is the same Senator Williams who, before the FBI's electronic listening tapes were released in his home state, casually said that reports of Mafia activity were exaggerated and pooh-poohed them.

Also unhappy is the late Yablonski's dedicated lawyer, the superdynamic Joseph Rauh. He is just not satisfied. He reiterates that "what is needed now is a full-scale investigation bya task force employing the full forces of the federal government -- the FBI, Labor Dept., Internal Revenue Service, Justice Dept., and other agencies..."

Fine. If we're looking into violence in unions outside the AFL-CIO (and the UMW is) why not unleash this task force on all violence in the field? Why concentrate the energies of such a task force only on one tragedy? Why not expand this investigation into the teamsters' arena?

There, throughout the Midwest, we will find that some 30,000 owner - driver truck steel haulers have been trying to opt out of the brotherhood. There is the same kind of violence which Mr. Rauh says he has observed in the miners' election. Much more, I suggest. There are grim threats to men and homes. There have been bombings, shotgun and rifle shootouts, battles with bolts, nuts and rocks. There have been blastings of terminals, trucks and the magazine headquarters of the opposition. Men have fought each other with pipes, baseball bats and golf clubs.

No one knows who is responsible for this violence or the death of at least one man.

But the fact is, and I have just returned from the field, there is a war. It will get worse during the current critical freight - trucking contract negotiations.

The rebel Teamsters have organized something called FASH -- Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers -- and want to run their own union or at least their autonomous section of the Teamsters.

It's all very mysterious here too. No one knows who has bombed the terminal or the opposition magazine or homes or trucks. But this is no charade. The haulers move about 50 per cent of the nation's finished steel products from city to city.

I could list reports of other violence in other fields where other men have died or been hurt or bombed in their homes or insurgent leaders have been threatened with death.

If there is some common mysterious force behind all this perhaps the best way to ease some of America's tragic pains is to get that task force, to take those hundreds of agents and set them up under an ad hoc central "disk" and search out the sluggers and gunmen.

Perhaps the "Yablonski affair" in all its gruesomeness can catelyze an awareness of these hidden wars.

The Yablonskis are dead. Let's try to head off other violence, anywhere and everywhere. A task force is a splendid idea -- but not just for Clarksville, Pa. There are hundreds of rebels. It's time they got support. Let's have no more blood baths

Charming Fellow Good Catch, But Sets Rules For Intended Bride...

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going with an attractive bachelor for seven months. He is considered a good catch, but he is 14 years my senior (I am 22) and I'm a little uneasy about a man of his financial status who still lives with his mother.

Last night he said, half - joking, "I'd marry you if you agreed, in writing, to do these five things." I asked, "What are the five things?" He then whipped out a piece of paper and handed me a pencil. Here is the list of requirements.

(1) I will change the bed linen every night.

(2) I will wear makeup to bed -- no hair rollers or face cream.

(3) I will get dressed in the morning -- no bathrobes or housecoats at breakfast.

(4) If I snore, I agree to have surgery and get the snore fixed.

(5) I will not speak in the morning until I am spoken to.

His requests are not unreasonable, but I resent his attitude. What do you think? -- Pie Face

Dear Pie: I think you ought to let his mother keep him for another 36 years.

Dear Ann Landers: A close friend of mine has a daughter who was always sensitive and never got along well with children her own age. Lila kept to herself mostly or tagged along with her mother.

Last year Lila, who was then 15, attached herself to a kind - hearted boy who felt sorry for her. After a while, he saw she was getting too serious and tried to break off with her. Lila kept chasing him and he couldn't escape from her clutches. Now she's gone and got herself pregnant.

The boy is only sixteen and marriage is out of the question. So is support. He doesn't have anything and neither do his folks.

Lila's mother wants her to keep the baby because she thinks it will help her grow up. I've been asked for my advice and want your views. -- No Ann Landers

Dear No: It is impossible for a girl to get herself pregnant. She had to have some help. Even though the boy is only 16, he should not be considered an innocent bystander. A lawyer can decide what his legal responsiblities are.

I hope Lila will give the child up for adoption. She sounds unstable and immature. Urge the mother to take the girl to a counselor. Both mother and daughter need professional help.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter brought her college roomate home for the holidays. We don't know much about the girl, except that she comes from a wealthy family. I was annoyed at the way our daughter served her friend breakfast in bed, picked up after her, rinsed out her lingerie and acted like a personal maid.

I feel this shows very poor breeding on the part of the guest. No matter what she is accustomed to at home, she shouldn't expect her hostess to wait on her. I think Miss Social Register has a lot to learn. Do you agree? -- Disgusted Mom

Dear Mom: Never mind about Miss Social Register, concern yourself instead with your daughter's role in this little vignette. Why does she behave like a handmaiden? Where is her dignity and self - esteem? True, the guest should not have used her so badly, but the real problem here is your daughter's doormat tendencies.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze And You - For Teen - Agers Only," by Ann Landers.

Girl, 14, accused Of Murder, Past Childhood

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen years after her birth, Debra Mattingly—everyone called her "Muffin"—could say she'd been around.

She had known detention homes, summer camps, courtrooms, hippie crash pads—everything, in short, but stability.

So it was easy, when Muffin Mattingly was charged last week with the murder of her adoptive father, a minor District of Columbia official, to quote her friends that she was "tough as nails, the kind of chick who eats nails."

The newspaper pictures—a short, blondish girl looking much older than 14, dragging on a cigarette, dressed in old jeans, sweatshirt and mackinaw jacket—made you forget that Muffin Mattingly was still a child.

And it took a few more questions to elicit the information that for all her tough, dirty talk, her love for motorcycles, her fondling of knives, Muffin Mattingly was really a sad little girl who had been kicked around almost since birth.

Also charged with the Jan. 8 murder in the suburban Arlington, Va., home, where Richard L. Mattingly apparently was strangled by having a crowbar pressed against his throat, are two of the wandering young men whose noisy, free lifestyle drew Muffin into their dropout circle.

Three other men are free on bond as material witnesses to the murder. Another alleged witness is a 15-year-old runaway from Amsterdam, N.Y.—a girl known in hippie circles as "Pegasus," whose real name is being kept under wraps by authorities.

The gang that frequented Dupont Circle, a warm-weather hippie gathering-place, knew Muffin as "Little Spirit." Eugene Comeau, 19, describing himself as a onetime Hell's Angel from California, was called "Big Spirit." Muffin recently telephoned a counselor and said she had married Comeau, and that they were sitting around fondling their knives.

Comeau is now one of Muffin's co-defendants. So is another wanderer said to be much taken with Comeau's alleged violent fantasies—Kenneth Hit er, a 21-year-old AWOL Marine.

Muffin's parents, destitute, gave her up for adoption when she was only 9 months old. Mattingly, an official of the District of Columbia Board of Condemnation was sued for separation five times by his wife. She succeeded the sixth time, in 1962, and Muffin went with her.

When she died, the girl rejoined Mattingly, and for the next three years life was a succession of runaways and wanderings.

As police tell it, Muffin, Pegasus, Comeau and Hitner went back to Mattingly's house that Thursday night to pick up some of her things. An argument broke out, police said, and Mattingly was killed. His body was found in the basement furnace room.

An apparently undelivered letter to his daughter was found in Richard Mattingly's belongings.

"Dear Muffin," it said, "If you come home during my absence today please leave the key so Dad won't have to go to the expense of changing the lock again.

"Needless to say, Dad is disappointed in you!!!

"... You have caused your adoptive father great heartache, worry and disappointment ... Sooner or later, you will be picked up, 'busted' as you say, and Dad will not be able to help you."

Poll At SEMO Supports Equality in Marriage

CAPE GIRARDEAU - A poll of about 650 Southeast Missouri State College students over the past five years shows most of them favor the concept of equality in marriage, reports Mrs. Mary Blackiston, assistant professor of home economics.

Participating in the poll were students enrolled in Mrs. Blackiston's personal and family relationship classes. Most of them were women, she said, but the men polled were also equalitarian in their views, but not quite as much so.

The questionnaire used in the poll was structured so the students' answers could be categorized into either the traditional or the qualitarian concept of the marriage role. The equalitarian concept, Mrs. Blackiston explained, signifies a sharing by marriage partners of responsibility, decision making, and discipline duties.

The home economics professor said the swing toward this concept is most evident in the feeling of most of those pooled that the care of children is a responsibility of both husband and wife.

"In the traditional concept this would have been the wife's role," she said.

Mrs. Blackiston said the change in attitude from the traditional to the equalitarian concept toward marriage is part of a nationwide trend. "The change has been a little slower here," she said, "because people are a little more conservatitive in the Midwest."

Leaders Named For Symington Women's Group

JEFFERSON CITY, MISSOURI - Mrs. Marie Roche, President of the Missouri Federation of Women's Democratic Clubs, and Mrs. Barbara Wolken, immediate past president of the Cole County Women's Democratic Club, were named today to lead the statewide Women's Campaign Committee for Senator Stuart Symington.

Mrs. Roche, 4110 Thekla, St. Louis, will be chairman and Mrs. Wolken, 1725 Southwest Blvd., Jefferson City, will be secretary.

Charles L. Bacon, Kansas City, Chairman of Missourians for Symington, announced that Mrs. Roche and Mrs. Wolken had accepted the appointments and would name others to their committee from each congressional district.

Bacon previously announced that Charles H. Howard of Jefferson City would serve as vice chairman, Ben Parnell of Branson as treasurer and Denton Smith, Springfield, as finance chairman of Missourians for Symington.

Mrs. Roche organized the First Ward Democratic Women's Club in St. Louis 22 years ago. She served as president for two years and is still active in the organization. She was St. Louis City chairman and coordinator for a tea for presidential candidate, John F. Kennedy, in 1960 which was attended by 5,000 persons. She has coordinated scores of campaign activies over the years.

Mrs. Wolken has been a member of the Cole County Club for 10 years and served as president last year. She is a court reporter.

"Mrs. Roche and Mrs. Wolken have played an active role in the Democratic Party for many years," Bacon said.

MATTHEWS' Kara Nunn (41) eyes the basket as he heads down the free throw lane for a layup during basketball action against Richland last night. Rebel defenders are Mark Peters (20), Barry Gaylord (background) and John Sims. Matthews won the game 56-46 to snap a two game losing streak.

Matthews Streak Ends; Pirate Players Return

ESSEX — Matthews snapped a two- game losing streak and toppled the Daily Standard's 10th rated Richland Rebels, 56-46, last night as Clarence Brooks and Carl Bishop returned to the Pirates, basketball lineup after missing the team's last battle.

Coach Jim Hart's Pirates averted the foul situation which has pleagued the Matthews quintet all season, but found the chairty shots hard to score as the team netted on 10 of 21 attempts.

Both squads were relatively cold from the floor, as each squad had trouble connecting on hits shots, accounting for the low score.

For the second straight game, Matthews trailed in the rebounding department 44-38 as sophomore John Sims led the Rebels in that department and the scoring with 19 in each.

Andrew Richardson paced the Pirates scoring with 21 points and got assistance from Bishop and Nara Nunn who dropped in 16 and 11 respectively.

Richland salvaged a split as its B-team picked up a 52-50 victory in overtime. Rodney McKeller led the Rebel scoring with 16 points while Raymond Bledsoe paced Matthews with 15 points.

Both teams head for their respective county tournament sites as action begins next week in the New Madrid and Stoddard county leagues.

Clay KO'd In 13th

PHILDELPHIA (AP)— Cassius Clay lost a computerized fight to Rocky Marciano but he didn't lose his sense of humor, his penchant for challenging poetry, or his verbal jabs at rival heavyweight Joe Frazier.

The film, staged before Marciano's death last year and screened in some 500 movie houses Tuesday night, showed Clay a 13th round knockout victim.

"It takes a good champion to lose like that," Clay told a newsman who had sat next to him in the darkened theater and had taken a couple of right elbow jabs in the ribs as the deposed heavyweight watched the action.

"Hey, watch that," said the worried newsman, a flyweight in size. "I'm not in the ring with you."

"Yeah, but that's fighting up there, and real good camera action," Clay replied, laughing. He sat in his shirt sleeves, his silk jacket held by his wife and a friend sat on his left trying to catch every one of his words on a tape recorder.

In the early rounds Clay took the lead. He said he was only watching the action - but he kept his eyes intently on the screen, sometimes rocking in his seat, his head often bobbing forward as he threw a punch.

"I'm sorry Rocky wasn't here to see it," Clay said. "He wanted to see it bad. You know there were seven different endings, and I had won twice by knockouts. I didn't know how it was going to come out, but that computer must have been in Alabama."

When Clay was counted out, he slumped just a little in his seat. Then he called out to the crowd of more than 400 already starting for the exits in the downtown Stanley Theater:

"All right, now let's see the real fight."

Clay, signing autographs willingly, seemed to enjoy the crowd that pressed around him, slapping his back, grabbing at his big hands.

"Joe Frazier wouldn't like this in his town," said Clay, whose title was stripped away in 1967 when he refused induction into the Army. "Or is it his home town?"

Clay this month began negotiations to complete purchase of a $92,000 home in Philadelphia's swank Overbrook section. He's now living there with his family pending final settlement.

He emphasized several times between screen rounds that he would never fight professionally again, and that the film battle was his last. But suddenly he'd stand up and about, "I'd wup Frazier anytime, all the time."

Once he waxed poeticly:

"Joe I'm going to come out smoking, but I'm not going to be joking.

"It may shock and amaze yer, to see the destruction of Frazier."

Frazier is recognized as Heavyweight champion in Pensylvania, New York and several other states. He is to fight Jimmy Ellis, the National Boxing Association champion, later this year.

Indians Scalp Cubs

PUXICO — The Puxico Indians were on the warpath last night, as they scalped the visiting Bell City Cubs 92-62. The Indians crushing basketball victory brought their record up to a modest 12-5, with last night's victory being a Stoddard County Conference win.

The Indians had control of the contest from the very beginning, as a hot first half put them in front 42-26 at the intermission. But more was still to come, as the Indians erupted for 31 big points in the high - scoring fourth.

Kenny Andrews took the high point honors for the contest, as he connected for 29 to pace the Indians in the conference victory. Gary Turner added to the Cubs woes, as he pumped in fifteen. The Indians managed 34 goals from the field compared to the cubs 19.

Doug Troph rivaled Andrews total, though, as he managed 22 in a losing cause.

It All Averages Out

By JOEL M. VANCE

Averages are yardsticks by which the average man can measure himself and say, "Gee, I wish I could do that well."

So it's interesting to note the average daily bag limits of various types of Missouri game in a publication enchantingly titled "Post- Season Game Harvest Mail Survey 1968-69" which is published by the Department of Conservation.

What the random survey did was take nearly 11,000 permit holders and ask them a bunch of questions by mail. Nearly 60 per cent of those questioned replied.

Except for rabbit hunting which has been in the doldrums, Missourians have enjoyed some outstanding hunting for upland game in the past few years.

The average squirrel hunter got 2.38 squirrels per day of hunting, in 1968 highest since 2.41 in 1961. Since 1969 is expected to be about the same for squirrels, the average hunter should take about two squirrels and one- third each hunting trip.

(About now, the average squirrel hunter will be saying, "Gee, I wish I could do that well," or something similar if less printable.)

The average daily bag on quail was 3.16 in 1967 and 3.15 in 1968. Since the 1969 season is rated nearly as good as 1968, the average hunter should get three quail a day and if he doesn't, he can blame it on his gun and buy a new one. (And try telling that nursery story to your wife!)

Dove hunters averaged about 2½ birds a day over the 1967 and 1968 seasons. Where pheasant hunting is legal (the 17 northwest Missouri counties which have ringnecks), hunters average about 2.25 birds a season.

The only game for which there was absolutely no daily bag, even for the best hunters, was the time- honored sport of fox chasing because the fox never is killed. It remains an Ozark pastime. The highest percent of hunting pressure came from the Ozark plateau.

That area also had the highest number of fox chasers, 2,479, but the western Ozark border fox chasers spent the most days (or nights) in the field-- 30.64.

The northeast riverbreak area of Missouri contributed the most days afield after raccoons, and, by far, the most hunters and the highest percentage of hunting pressure.

The average daily bag on raccoons was 1.44. Woodchuck plunkers averaged 1.25 whistlepigs per day, with the highest (1.63) falling to Ozark plateau sharpshooters.

Crow shooters on the northwest prairie are likely to lead everybody -- at least they did in 1968- 69. They took 5.16 crows a day on the average and no other region was even close.

On the other hand, there were fewer crow hunters in that area, they didn't hunt as often and the total harvest was far lower (19,530) than the Ozark plateau area (72,639).

The 1969 duck season was the best in years, so figures for 1968 probably wouldn't apply, but goose hunters averaged .55 bird statewide per day and duck hunters .90 bird per day.

That's how the average hunters did and do. Now, as for the rest of u .....

A SQUIRREL in a tree is one of Missouri's more familiar sights. Bushytail hunting in Missouri continued good in 1969 and will re-open May 30, 1970. (Department of Conservation photo)

WARDELL -- The North Pemiscot Mustangs galloped to their ninth cage victory last night, defeating the Hayti Indians 74-62. The Mustangs moved their Bootheel Conference record to 3-2 for the season.

In moving their overall record to 9-5 the Mustangs put six men in the win figure column with Don Smith leading the way by collecting 16. Tony White and Bob McCulloch added 13 and 12 respectively. Terry McCulloch, John Smith, and Claude Robinson each ended the game with 11. Terry McCulloch also grabbed 10 rebounds.

It was a lopsided game as the Mustangs would take off with a tremendous lead and the Hayti Indians would then bounce right back to stay in the game. Hayti at one time held the lead in the third quarter, 41-40.

Leading the way for the Indians scoring attack Larry Weatherspoon as he grabbed 12 rebounds and pumped in 21 points for high game honors.

The JV Indians kept Hayti from losing both games as they won, 79-60. Tony Tuff led the way for the Hayti warpath as he gained 28 points with teammate Trotter shooting for 23. The Mustangs were paced by Ron Young with 15 and Bobby Jennings with 12.

MOPAC Promotes Laseter

Jerry E. Laseter, former resident of Sikeston, has been appointed district superintendent of stations on the eastern district of the Missouri Pacific Railroad with headquarters in Little Rock.

Laseter began his career with the Missouri Pacific in 1960 at Poplar Bluff as an extra agent telegrapher.

In 1965, he was advanced to train dispatcher and, in 1967, as inspector of stations and claims. In 1968, he was appointed Assistant Superintendent of stations of the Pacific railway at Fort Worth.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Laseter of route four, Sikeston, he graduated from Sikeston high school in 1956 and attended Union University at Jackson, Tenn., and Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau.

He is married to Rita Jean Lewis of route three, Sikeston, and is the father of two children, Jerry E. II and and Rita Jo.

Goal for Democrat Dinner 1,000 Tickets

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis County Democrats say they hope to sell at least 1,000 tickets for a $100 a plate fund raising dinner Feb. 12.

Former Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford will be the featured speaker.

Proceeds from the dinner will be used in the re- election campaigns of Sen. Stuart Symington, Rep. James W. Symington and Democratic candidates for St. Louis county offices.

The Democratic dinner will occur two days after Missouri Republicans hold a similar fund raising event in St. Louis featuring a speech by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Orton Says Suit Is Political

CARUTHERSVILLE, MO. - Sheriff Clyde Orton charged Monday that the political ambitions of Attorney General John C. Danforth are behind Danforth's suit to oust him from office on grounds of "willful and fraudulent violation and neglect of official duties."

"It is common knowledge," Orton said in a prepared statement, "that Mr. Danforth, the only Republican holding state office, has high political ambitions to be U. S. senator or governor of the state of Missouri."

Orton, who is a Pemiscot County Democrat, also charged The St. Louis Globe - Democrat, which printed a series dealing with liquor raids in the county, is promoting Danforth "as the Globe did when Mr. Danforth ran for attorney general."

The Globe - Democrat was labeled by Orton as "the leading Republican newspaper in the state."

Danforth's suit for ouster of Orton followed raids on cafes in Pemiscot County accused of selling liquor or beer without licenses. The raids were by state liquor agents and highway patrolmen.

In his suit, filed last week, Danforth contended that while Orton has been sheriff there have been "numerous and repeated open and notorious violations of the criminal laws of Missouri with respect to the sale of liquor and beer and to gambling, which violations were widespread and general" in Pemiscot County.

A state liquor control supervisor, Harry Wiggins, said officials from Albama and Mississippi had complained that illegal whisky was being shipped from Pemiscot County into dry counties in their states.

"I welcome the opportunity to prove my innocence in an open and fair hearing," Orton said in his statement.

When Rhinoceroses Get Into Domestic Spat, Watch out

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When the St. Louis Zoo's pair of white rhinoceroses, Dinka and Joyce, had a domestic tiff, something's got to give.

When they had a quarrel in 1966, Dinka lost one of his 29-inch horns when he charged Joyce and missed, then ran into a wall.

Earlier this week, Dinka lost patience with his 6,000- pound mate, picked her up on his regenerated horn and tried to throw her through the bars of their cage.

He didn't but Joyce's bulk bent some of the thick steel bars of the pen. Joyce came out of it with minor abrasions.

The building seats 3,500. All judges will be from out-of-state.

The Mexico Jaycees are the new sponsors and they have pledged efforts to raise a greater sum for scholarship prizes than the $3,000 offered last year in Springfield.

The sponsors also plan to limit the entry list to 32 contestants.

Chiropractors to Meet in Ironton

IRONTON — The Southeast Missouri Chiropractic Association will hold its bi-monthly meeting, Sunday, in Ironton.

Dr. Larry Webster of Malden, president of the association, states that the major portion of the meeting will concern a new state law. This law requires insurance companies doing business in Missouri to pay chiropractic claims. Other portions of the meeting will concern correct posture week, and career days in junior colleges.

Towboat Pushes Through Ice

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A towboat pushing upstream in the ice-jammed Mississippi River succeeded in opening a channel to about 24 miles north of Cairo but still faced more than 20 miles of ice to the north.

The effort to break the gorge was in a race against time before a predicted drop in temperatures refreezes the ice pack.

The ice gorge extends from near Cairo northward to just below Diversion Channel.

A second major gorge extends for about 29 miles northward from 10 miles south of Chester, Ill.

The gorges formed when heavy ice floes, created from bitter cold temperatures last week, jammed the channels. Large quantities of shipping have been tied up here, at Cairo and elsewhere waiting for the ice packs to break.

Warmer temperatures this week have softened the ice, but the moderation may not last long enough.

The forecast is for colder temperatures and this may nullify progress in breaking the gorge.

Clearing the way this morning was the towboat Lady Kimberly, Wm. Busch, a Corps of Engineers official here, reported.

The boat is trying to crack a channel in the ice and five or six boats are behind it seeking to keep the chanel open, Mr. Busch said.

Little activity was reported this morning on the north gorge which, Busch observed, seemed to be tighter than south one. The area was fog- bound this morning.

Busch said that 15 towbats and 375 barges are tied up in the river harbor at Cairo waiting for the ice to clear and eight to 10 boats and possibly 40 barges are in between the gorges in the Cape Girardeau area.

Different boats at the Cairo end have been chipping away at the gorge. Some have had to retire because of damaged hulls, Mr. Busch reported.

If the Lady Kimberly can reach Mile 30- about six miles above its morning progress point - it will have about two miles of open water before the ice pack starts again, Busch reported.

Dear Sir:

I cannot understand some of the people of our country. Are we not fighting in Vietnam just as we did in Korea to prevent the spread of communism and the enslavement of free people? I completely disagree with those who would have us leave our task undone. Do these people not care about the fate of their brothers or do they believe only those living within our national boundaries are our brothers? I believe we should live with all mankind but not with the attitude that we sit safely in our homes and watch the world become enslaved around us. Do they honestly believe if this happens, we will be spared the same fate?

Would they who would have us completely withdraw simply chalk it up to a bad experience and therefore a waste of lives of those who have died? To those who have been wounded, would they say "Thank you very much but it was all a terrible mistake. You have wasted your time and your healthy bodies." What answers will they give future generations when asked why we did not help free people stay free? This seems to be the easy way of dropping our responsibility for our brothers but what a terrible responsibility of not caring must be accepted in its place.

With so many people anti-Vietnam, anti- establishment, anti- everything, I fear for the future of our country, that we will ourselves lose our democracy because of the many so willing to sit by apathetically and not accept the responsibility for our continuing freedom. I cannot accept demonstrations by protestors as responsible acts of protecting freedom and our country.

My desire is to see peace but not at the expense of freedom of any nation. My husband is at present in Vietnam. Should he not return safely home, who will dare explain to our four teenage children it was all a terrible mistake for they also believe in the cause that has sent him there.

I ask each person who believes as I do to join this letter campaign, writing to congressmen, senators, the President and to editors to make known his or her views so the negative advertisement which has too long dominated our news media will be counter-balanced. I cannot believe this negative attitude represents the majority of Americans. Write so our President will fully know he has our backing for he cannot see all local shows of support. It is time we make ourselves known, not by demonstrations, but by quiet advertisement.

Jaycees to Celebrate 50th Anniversary

SEDALIA - This week is designated National Jaycee Week, observing the founding of the United States Jaycees in St. Louis.

The Jaycees will celebrate their 50th anniversary at the annual meeting in St. Louis, Missouri, during June. It is a return to the birthplace of the young men's organization, founded in that city by a concerned young man named Henry Giessenbier in 1920.

During their 50 year history, the Jaycees have grown to a membership of more than 325,000 young men between the ages of 21 and 36 and now have chapters in more than 6,500 communities in all 50 States and the District of Columbia.

These young men are trying to solve the problems of today in human resource development, environmental improvement, legislative action, individual and spiritual development, health, recreation and sports, safety provention and law enforcement, menal health and mental retardation and community relations.

Jaycees are concerned, committed and involved with making our communities better places to live in the future while training themselves to be tomorrow's leaders.

Information concerning the Jaycees can be obtained from any Jaycee Chapter or Ken Moore, Executive Vice President, Missouri Jaycees, Sedalia, Missouri.

Inflation Boosts Wishing Well Proceeds

CAMDENTON, Mo. (AP) — Inflation is raising revenues at the wishing well, Eddie Miller, manager of Bridal Cave at the Nearby Lake of the Ozarks, said Thursday.

Bridal Cave's wishing well is cleaned out yearly of its coins and the money is put into a college scholarship fund for a Camdenton High School graduate. Miller said among the coins recovered for 1969 there were more than four times the number of quarters and nearly twice the number of dimes as in the previous two years.

The sum collected for 1969, Miller said, was $423. Total for the previous two years was $457.05. The number of visitors to the cave was nearly the same each year, Miller added.

MISS ANNIE McADOO, who retired Saturday after 32 years with the Brown Shoe Co. factory in Charleston is shown at the sewing machine she has operated most of that time as a fancy stitcher. - Charleston Enterprise - Courier Photo.

Bertrand Woman Retires At Charleston Plant

CHARLESTON — Saturday was a big day in the life of Miss Annie McAdoo of route one, Bertrand.

After 32 years of work at the Brown Shoe Co. factory Miss Annie retired Saturday at the age of 63. She became 64 on Sunday. There were no ceremonies to mark the occasion; just the shutting down of her sewing machine, saying goodbye to friends, and going home.

Miss McAdoo, who lives with her brother and sister-in- law about four miles southeast of Bertrand, went to work for Brown Shoe on January 3, 1938, just six weeks after the factory opened in November, 1937. She has never since been off the payroll, and at the time of her retirement stood third on the seniority list a the factory behind Mrs. Marguerite Hampton and Miss Garnet Conyers, both of whom went to work for Brown Shoe in December, 1937.

"I have to give credit to the Lord for helping me to stay on the job all this time," Miss McAdoo says. Actually, she said Friday, her perfect attendance record was spoiled in 1959 when she had to take sick leave for two weeks due to an operation on her hand. Reflecting a refreshing, if somewhat old-fashioned devotion to her work, Miss McAdoo says she had the operation performed at the beginning of a two- week vacation, hoping she could return to work immediately after the vacation.

"I was awfully disappointed when the doctor told me it would take an extra two weeks for the hand to heal," she says. Factory Manager L. L. Clough said Miss McAdoo's attendance record is exceptional.

Asked how many shoes she has helped make over her 32-year career, Miss McAdoo only smiles. Her supervisor, however, says she stitches some 1,400 shoes a day, and that based on 50 weeks per year, five days per week for 32 years, the total number of shoes could be as high as 11½ million.

Her retirement plans? Miss Annie says part of the time she plans to do nothing at all, but she doesn't intend to just sit all the time. "I like to garden," she says, "both flowers and vegetables," and "I need to walk about four or five miles a day, so I will probably do a lot of walking," she adds.

Cantrell Calls for Emergency Funds to Continue Medicaid

ST. LOUIS (AP)—State Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, said Tuesday some nursing homes in Missouri are afraid of losing Medicaid payments in April and are returning Medicaid-supported patients to mental hospitals.

He said Farmington State Hospital has taken back a number of patients. Cantrell, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, urged that the state legislature, appropriate emergency funds to continue Medicaid.

Cantrell spoke Tuesday at a meeting of the Missouri Association of Social Work.

Another speaker, Sister Michael, administrator of St. Anne's Nursing Home in North St. Louis, said Medicare has become "a shaky business." She said some patients placed by doctors in nursing homes under Medicare are later found by insurance companies not to qualify. She said this places a financial burden on the patient and nursing home.

Dennis Shaw, San Diego State quarterback, led the nation's collegiate football players in total offense in 1969 with 3,186 yards and 45 touchdowns. He scored six TDs and passed for 39 others.

To the Editor:

I received a letter recently from my son, serving with the Air Force in Cam Ran Bay, South Vietnam, which I thought described the feelings of our servicemen there. The letter read in part:

"It's not the kids that really lower our morale here in Vietnam. It's the Senators that have come out and repeatedly said we servicemen are sinners for being over here, when we're serving our country.

"Many of us would rather be home. Yet they call us killers, even murderers now, because of the My Lai incident, and I think that this is really disheartening.

"I think if you all back home really knew the situation over here, our servicemen would not be called murderers.

"Our servicemen go in and sweep through a village and there will be nothing but civilians in there. They no sooner get halfway out of town and the civilians they have just passed have taken arms up and are shooting at them.

"Little kids go in and our servicemen give them food, but they found out that what These kids are really going in for is to hand hand grenades for the Viet Cong. These are little kids four, five, six, seven, and eight years old.

"This isn't a war fought like the second World War, where Americans wore American uniforms, and the Germans wore German uniforms, and the Japanese wore Japanese uniforms.

"This is a war that takes on different shapes and different modes. It's a war that's completely different than what the world has ever known or ever fought before. I wish the people back home would realize this..."

Fire Damages Ford Plant

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A fire early today damaged a portion of the Ford Motor Co.'s assembly plant in suburban Hazelwood.

G. M. Crittenden, industrial relations manager for the plant which turns out Ford's Mercury cars, said only a cleanup crew was on duty when the fire broke out and no one was injured.

The blaze erupted in "a final spray painting booth," Crittenden said, and was confined to the booth and the oven area when the paint is baked onto the autos.

Crittenden said the fire was completely extinguished by 4:30 a.m. but the cause and amount of damage remain undetermined.

Crittenden said both day and evening shifts, a total of more than 5,000 persons, were being advised not to report for work today.

Caruthersville Girl Wins Speech Event

Miss Terry Beck, a senior at Caruthersville high school, has been declared the winner of the 14th District oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion.

She delivered her talk entitled "The Crisis in America Today" in Legion Hall.

Miss Beck was the only one of four scheduled contestants to show up for the contest, the others withdrawing because of bad weather and hazardous driving conditions.

Although she automatically became the winner, she was scored by the judges in attendance. The district covers 10 counties.

Miss Beck will now enter the zone contest to be held Feb. 8 in St. Louis. The zone winner will go to the state contest and the state winner to the national contest.

Former U.S. Secretary of Treasury Dies

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) - Former Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, one of the strong men of President Dwight D. Eisenhower's cabinet from 1953 to 1957, died Tuesday night at University Hospital.

Humphrey, who was 79, entered the hospital last Aug. 27 after suffering an apparent heart stroke. He returned Dec. 27 and was admitted to the cardiac unit.

President Eisenhower once remarked of his treasury secretary: "When George speaks, we all listen."

A gifted businessman, Humphrey in 1953 gave up a reported annual income of more than $300,000 to take the $22,500 - a - year cabinet post.

At the time he was chairman of the board of M.A. Hanna Co. of Cleveland, then a leading iron ore, coal and Great Lakes shipping firm.

Humphrey was an economic conservative and a firm believer in a balanced national budget, in seeking to curb the expansion of government spending, he succeeded in arranging that no decisions on proposals for governmental monetary outlays should be final until the Treasury had taken a look at them.

Despite his efforts to have federal outlays held down, there were business recessions in 1953 and 1957.

On the verge of his retirement from his cabinet post, Humphrey said a better world situation would permit government spending cuts.

Born in Cheboygan, Mich., March 8, 1890, he was graduated from the University of Michigan and the Michigan Law School.

He joined the M. A. Hanna Co. in 1917 and became president in 1929.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — When his daughter Sandy was small, Hilliard Singleton gave her 20 cents each Sunday.

One day, as for the Sunday School collection plate; the other was for her own use.

One day, she dropped one of the coins and it rolled through a sidewalk grating.

"Oh God," said the child reverently, "there went your dime."

DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir:

In the words of UN Secretary General U. Thant in his recent annual report, the UN's financial situation "remains precarious" and is a "matter of serious concern." The UN, in fact, is near bankruptcy. As of this summer, members owed $130 million in uncollected assessments. Several nations, most of them communist, have declared they have no intention of paying. Despite this substantial deficit, the UN has constantly increased its operating budget. For this past year it was $200 million, not including the budgets of special agencies. The Economic and Social Development Fund alone is to spend $250 million in 1970, up from $200 million in thyprevious year. Since the U. S. A. pays about half of the UN expenditures, our taxpayers will "contribute" about $100 million to this UN aid program. Our own aid program is wasteful, but it ss even worse to use taxpayers' money in a foreign - aid program over which our Congress has no control whatsoever.

Constructively,

H. L. Hunt

MISS MARY WILLIAMS checks the progress of Billy Lough as he views individual filmstrips as part of the independent reading program used in the team- teaching program of East Prairie's A. J. Martin School.

Reading Taught By Teacher Team

By SHIRLEY PRITCHETT

EAST PRAIRIE — Team teaching is an innovation in the A. J. Martin elementary school.

Two sections of fifth grade students are participating in a reading program taught by Miss Mary Williams and Mrs. Michael Euer, assisted by teachers aide, Mrs. Floyd Myers.

The team approach permits teachers to pool their creative ideas, knowledge and talents to meet objectives and provide better instruction and greater attention to individual students.

The classroom is a beehive of activity. Students are divided into six groups, with no more than 12 in each and on different projects. These groupings enable students to work with others of approximately the same ability and reading speed. Students were grouped once before under the modified Joplin Plan used in the school before they were placed in the same room.

Miss Williams and Mrs. Euer each have two separate groups to divide their time between during a class period.

A typical class period finds them introducing and talking about stories to one group; instructing another in how to do their free- time activities; while still another section is working with instructional equipment. Their aide listens to oral readings while keeping an eye on the section which is busy with independent activity.

Instructional equipment used in the team- teaching program includes: cyclo-teachers (programmed learning) vocalette tapes on reading skills; SRA kits in reading comprehension, spelling, or map skills; Webster reading kits; flash-x machines, for reading rate increase; and individual viewing film strips and programmed learning books.

Once a week, each group is given free time to read any book which interests it from the classroom library. This library is supplied with new books each month from the school's central library. Selected on all reading levels there are fine arts, social sciences, and Science books from which to choose.

In using the program of team teaching, Mrs. Euer said:

"We find that students are grouped more nearly to their abilities, and as teachers, we have considerably more opportunity and time for individualized instruction."

Disabled Can Collect U.S. Benefits

CAPE GIRARDEAU - People who are disabled may be cheating themselves out of a source of income, according to Clifford W. Forsee, manager of the Cape Girardeau Social Security Office. "We still see disabled people lose benefits because they don't come in to inquire soon enough, even though the social security disability program has been in effect for 14 years."

Forsee explained that the benefits are lost because benefits can be paid retroactively for only one year. Therefore, a person who files in January 1970 may be paid back only until January 1969, even though his disability might date back several years.

Disability benefits may be paid to totally disabled workers who are not yet age 65 and whose disability has or is expected to last a year or more, Forsee said. Payments may also be made to wives and children of workers who qualify for disability benefits. In addition to workers, benefits may also be paid to adult disabled children of social security beneficiaries as well as disabled widows past age 50.

Forsee explained that to qualify for disability benefits, a worker must be disabled to the extent that he can no longer perform gainful work. For additional information, phone, write, or visit the social security office located at 339 Broadway, Cape Girardeau, Mo. Offices at Kennett and Flat River, Mo. are also open Monday through Friday except legal holidays.

Only U.S. Supreme Court justice ever to decline the chief justiceship was William Cushing, who did so in 1796.

Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you,... do good to them that hate you. (Matthew 5:43-44)

PRAYER: Dear Father, deliver us from following the easy way of returning evil for evil. Strengthen us in will and spirit to obey the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount. We ask Thee for strength to love our enemies. In the name of Christ, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven ... Amen."

Republicans for Funding Schools

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The minority Republicans of the Missouri House said that full allotments should be made to the public schools in March rather than providing more than $7 million for a maximum security prison.

Minority leader, Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R- Clayton, said in a GOP statement Gov. Warren E. Hearnes would be manipulating school laws if he tried to draw on later tax receipts to make a fourth payment to schools in April rather than sticking to the statutory three with the final one not later than March 15.

"Faithful observance of present laws," King said in the statement, "would clarify that the No. 1 responsibility in Missouri is to public education.

Of Interest to Homemakers

By FREDERICKA PLUMMER
Area Home Economist

CHARLESTON - If you were a victim of frozen water pipes during the recent zero weather, you realize what it means to be without water for a short time. Did you have your emergency supply stored?

Emergencies can arise at any time. Something happens to the plumbing, so the plumber has to turn off the water while he makes the repairs. If you don't have a supply of water stored, in this case you can run some out to use while the work is being done. However, storm or other emergencies may not provide enough warning.

You should store enough drinking water for several days. Each member of your family will need at least one quarter of water per day for drinking. Two to three times more is needed for washing hands and utensils. How many gallons would your family need to store?

You may store water in different kinds of containers. Plastic jugs with tight fitting caps are best. Save your empty plastic containers to use. The one-gallon size takes little shelf space and is easy to handle. Be sure containers are clean. Fill them from a safe water supply.

Metal containers sometimes rust and often give water an unpleasant taste. Glass jugs need to be protected to prevent breakage. Check your containers occasionally for leaks, undesirable odor or taste. Replace with fresh water from time to time.

Your house probably has a reserve supply of water. Your water heater or pressure tank will supply many gallons if they can be drained. Toilet tanks and pipes also have usable water.

Your body's most important need is for water, so be prepared for emergencies. Get water containers and fill them.

If You Were the Judge

Woman's Looks Can Be Legally Deceiving

By Jack Strane, LLB

Calvin met a blonde who was so curvaceous that she practically had him drooling throughout their entire courtship. On their wedding night, however, she stepped behind a screen in their hotel room and began tossing out each of her "charms" - a wig, false eye lashes, false fingernails, false teeth, a padded bra, false hips and a corset that could have drawn whistles without anyone being in it.

When she finally reappeared from behind the screen, Calvin's bride had a figure that fiercely resisted - of sew seraway 14 - year - old boy.

At first stunned by what he saw, Calvin quickly regained his composure and made a bee - line for the nearest courthouse where he demanded an annulment on the grounds of fraud.

"I married a work of art," he told the judge, "only to discover that she was a work of construction. Had I known the truth, I'd never have married her."

"Nonsense," answered Calvin's wife. "In the battle of love, a woman has the right to make herself as alluring as possible. That's not fraud, that's battle tactics."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you free Calvin from his shapeless wife and grant him an annulment?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that during courtship, a woman need not tell her intended spouse that she used devices or other artechnemis to improve nature's work on her face and figure. A woman has the prerogative of making herself look as attractive as possible.

The incident followed an argument involving four women, two of whom are sisters to the policeman.

Cold Sends Residents from Morehouse Homes

Low natural gas pressure, caused by the heavy consumption in the homes, have caused the closing of two schools and a large number of homes, left with no or a small amount of gas pressure.

The kindergarten class at the Airport school was closed today, and will continue to be closed during the subzero weather.

The Morehouse elementary school was closed today because of need of gas in the homes was too great to take care of the needs. A number of residents sought relief from the cold at the fire station.

Cause of the gas shortage in the present cold wave, according to a school official today, was that the pressure was not great enough to keep the furnaces going.

The morning period from 5 to 8:30 a.m. in the homes, causes the pressure to be low, when cooking and heating is at its heighth.

A report from East Prairie today was that about 100 persons called in that their homes lacked sufficient heat.

Lem Hill, Sikeston, who was picked up last night after escaping from the county jail in Benton, escaped from the city jail in Sikeston after a furnace motor belt came loose, filling the police station with smoke.

Hill and other prisoners were removed from cells and placed in the court room. Hill walked out of the station into the cold. He was lightly dressed. Officer Robert Bonner picked him up about 15 minutes later on West Malone.

"He was cold and ready to come back," Police Chief Arthur Bruce said.

The incident happened at 9 p.m. last night.

Hill was being held at Benton on an assault charge.

Burch, Cathey and Giles Win Jaycee Citations

Bill Burch, manager of the Sikeston Coca Cola plant, was named recipient of the Junior Chamber of Commerce distinguished service award at the Country Club last night.

Herb Cathey, of the Cathey-Owens Insurance Agency, was named boss of the year and Richard Giles, a speech correctionist in the Sikeston Public schools, was named the outstanding young educator of the year. Presentation of the awards was made by Jaycee President Stan Eudy.

Speaker at the annual banquet was Lee Thomas, former major league ball player.

In making the DSA presentation, Eudy said:

"This award is given to the most outstanding young man in our community."

Burch, 34, is a former farmer and coordinator of activities for five Production Credit Association offices in Southeast Missouri. He served as an office manager with PCA before he was hired by Sikeston Coca- Cola.

Burch has served as an officer of the Lee Hunter P-TA and is credited with playing a major role in reviving the Scott County Young Democrats. He is a charter member of the Sikeston Elks lodge and was instrumenal in organizing it.

Burch served as county chairman for the Tom Eagleton for senator campaign.

Burch, 1009 Allen Blvd., is first vice president of the Chamber of Commerce. He was Jaycee president last year.

The DSA recipient is chairman of the Council of the Arts and is a vice president of the Lions club.

Burch has been a state Jaycee vice president and a national Jaycee director.

Burch was instrumental during 1969 in initiating a drive to enlarge the city limits. He is a member of the First Baptist church. He and his wife, Charlotte, have two children, Rebecca and Stephen.

Giles, 31, has been with Sikeston schools four years. He moved here from Cape Girardeau. He and his wife, Gail, have two children, Cynthia and Christopher.

Speaker Lee Thomas related experiences he had this past year while playing professional ball in Japan.

Thomas was asked about Curt Flood's action on the player reserve clause in the major leagues.

He said all major league players should be contacted for a vote on the matter and he said that neither the players or ballclubs are "entirely correct."

Many Nursing Homes Are Quitting Medicare or Refuse New Patients

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of the nation's nursing homes have quit the medicare program. Many others still in the program refuse to accept new medicare patients.

A nationwide Associated Press survey disclosed that more than 500 nursing homes have withdrawn since extended care provisions of the federal health care program began three years ago. In the last six months alone, Social Security Administration figures show, 295 extended care facilities have dropped medicare voluntarily.

Some of this impact is canceled, however, by enrollment of newly buiilt facilities in the booming nursing home industry.

Government officials trace the industry's discontent to a crackdown on misuse and overuse of medicare's benefits.

Not so, say nursing home administrators. Their dissatisfaction results, they contend, from retroactive denial of benefits, staggering paperwork and low rates.

The AP survey turned up no instances of elderly patients being suddenly turned out of nursing homes. But many administrators said their homes no longer accept medicare patients, though still qualified under the program.

"The national trend of nursing homes to drop out of medicare's extended care program" was cited this month by Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, when he launched congressional hearings on nursing home problems.

But a Social Security Administration spokesman said, "there's no trend. The number of homes in the program goes up and down."

Although 295 homes quit the program in six months, this official said, others signed up so the net loss was only 50—from 4,900 certified extended care facilities July 1, to 4,850 Jan. 1.

There are about 25,000 nursing homes in the nation, but not all can qualify for medicare's extended care program because of such requirements as around-the-clock licensed nursing care.

Medicare does not pay for custodial nursing home care. Rather, it was designed to pay for short-term stays in nursing homes for patients recuperating after discharge from a hospital.

To qualify, a patient must require skilled nursing care on a continuing basis. He also must enter an extended care facility (ECF) within two weeks after leaving a hospital where he had remained at least three consecutive days.

On a typical day, 80,000 elderly nursing home patients across the country are having their bills paid by medicare. The average stay in a nursing home under medicare is 50 days. The average monthly claim is $365.

Medicare pours about $450 million a year into nursing homes, but this is less than half of the more than $1 billion paid nursing homes annually by medicaid, the state administered, largely federal financed program of medical care for low income people of all ages.

Medicaid, in general, pays the bills of elderly patients who need less intensive, but longerterm, nursing home care.

In a few states, medicaid is more controversial than medicare. In Ohio, the number of nursing homes participating in medicare increased 16 during 1969 and now total 212. But nursing home operators in parts of the state are talking of boycotting medicaid in a dispute over benefit levels.

Medicaid isn't worth a hoot," said Rowland Lutz, administrator of a large Columbus home. "We do not take medicaid patients." In contrast, Lutz said, "medicare is not a problem with us."

But hundreds of other nursing homes view medicare—not medicaid—as causing bigger headaches.

Senate Delays Veto Showdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today delayed a veto showdown with President Nixon by returning to the House, for settlement of a side issue, a disputed, $19.7 billion appropriation bill.

The budget-raising health and education funds which drew the White House veto warning were not at issue; both Senate and House have agreed on $1.26 billion in spending that Nixon opposes.

On a 47 to 40 roll call vote, the Senate backed Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., in his demand that Congress earmark for specific programs the nearly $2 billion that the bill appropriates for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The House version left it to the poverty agency to allocate money to its various programs.

The appropriations amount is not involved.

Now it will be up to the House to either accept the Senate earmarking terms, or reject them and seek a new negotiating conference on that issue alone.

The crucial vote on the longdelayed appropriation bill was the 74 to 17 tally by which the Senate Tuesday approved the spending levels Nixon has challenged as inflationary.

Escape Brief for Kansas Kidnap-Slayer Suspect

OLATHE, Kan. (AP)—Thomas Lamb, held in Johnson County jail on charges of murder and kidnaping, escaped with the aid of a trusty early today and both men were captured at La Cygne, Kan., 40 miles south of here.

Lloyd Midyett, 52, an ememploye in the powerhouse of the Kansas School for the Deaf at Olathe, was forced to accompany the pair in his station wagon but was released unharmed when the car was halted by officers.

Radio reports from the scene said highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers took Lamb into custody as soon as their auto was halted. The reports said the trusty, Patrick McKey, 18, remained in the car with the hostage briefly, then released the hostage, but remained in the car holding a gun.

The reports said officers and Lamb talked McKey into surrendering.

Lamb, 28, was arrested last Friday on a charge of kidnaping Miss Patricia Ann Childs, 18, in Overland Park the day before. He was captured shortly after the girl's father paid $3,500 ransom.

Subsequently, Lamb was charged with the murder in December of Miss Karen Sue Kimmerly, a student at the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

McKey, of Wyandotte County, was being held for failure to show in court on a charge of drunken driving. He had been in jail since Jan. 6.

First Newsmen Allowed Inside Biafra See Evidences of Hunger, Looting and Rape

OWERRI, Nigeria (AP) — The first newsmen allowed inside fallen Biafra saw famished refugees fighting for food, looting by Nigerian soldiers and heard several firsthand accounts of women being raped by victorious Nigerian troops.

The farther the press party went inside former Biafran territory, the worse the conditions of hunger, homelessness and confusion became.

Everywhere refugees were on the road, teetering all their worldly goods on their heads, hunting lost husbands and children, trying desperately to change their Biafran money into Nigerian pounds to buy what food was available at little impromptu roadside markets.

A young British doctor, working in Nigeria less than two weeks, leaned his head against an ambulance and wept with rage.

"I've had Lugers stuck in both my ears," he sobbed. "My life has been threatened umpteen times by soldiers wanting to steal my trucks and ambulances. I'm not a doctor, I'm a bloody copper (policeman)."

The doctor said he had just returned from an open field where 80 to 100 wounded Biafran soldiers were "lying in their own puss and excrement, waiting for treatment that never arrived.

"They bloody well ought to be dead," he continued. "Now I've got to go try and fix them up. Don't go near them unless you've got clothespins on your nose."

The doctor, from Colchester, would only give his name as "Doctor Phil." Without naming the unit, he said the soldiers on duty in the area of the pediatric hospital at Okporo were "such monsters" he never let the nurses go anywhere without an escort, "especially white ones—the native nurses can always go bush if something happens."

The young girls are afraid to come out of the bush, they are terrified of what will happen," Ibo novelist Cyprian Ekwensi told the newsmen. "There is now a saying among them: 'Stay in hiding or you will be conscripted into the army.'"

"My sister Bibi was taken off and raped by the soldiers," a university student named Paul Ohagwa said. Two Biafran nurses who would only give their names as Theresa and Caroline said they were raped several times as they passed through roadblocks trying to make their way out of the bush.

In Port Harcourt, recaptured by federal troops 17 months ago and now a state capital, the state governor entertained top brass at his daughter's wedding feat. But just a few miles away. Ibo refugees faced death. About 600 were crammed into the tiny Niger Maternity Home, many of them lying motionless in the hot sun amid vomit, dust and flies.

A group of British construction workers took up a collection to find food for them. They said three to four died daily.

"The villages are the worst off," said an Irish missionary, Father Eammon McMahon, surrounded by hundreds of refugees begging for Nigerian pounds in the shell-pocked main square of Owerri. "They have no food, their money is useless and we have no way of getting anything to them."

The once proud Ibos, who through education and ambition had moved farther up the ladder of progress than Nigeria's 200 other tribes, were reduced to begging, with outstretched hands by the roadside, and fighting and clawing at each other when a food bag fell off a truck or broke at a feeding station.

Such scenes were repeated endlessly in the newsmen's 150-mile tour of Ibo land. For all Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon's good intentions, it did not seem that the Nigerian army and the government relief machinery could begin coping with the problem.

Uli airstrip, except for a few potholes, seemed to be in excellent condition. But it was deserted save for the rusting carcasses of at least six planes bombed in their parking bays in the final federal siege.

A Nigerian captain in charge of guard detail at the ghost strip was outraged at questions of using Uli strip now.

"It was built by the rebels," he said. "We would never think of using it. We will build a better airfield."

Reduced Measure Passes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House today passed a $13.6 million emergency money bill, 151-4, and sent it to the Senate where the appropriations committee already is considering major items.

The House session lasted less than 10 minutes despite the fact Rep. Richard Marshall, R-Webster Groves, opposed the bill in what he admitted was a sarcastic approach.

He said now that the Senate has got rid of Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, as its president pro tem, there can hardly be any emergency left to justify the special session.

"Now we can vote against this bill and go home," he said.

Marshall called the measure a "travesty on the people of this state. We have the $7 million available for the public schools right now and it should be put in this measure."

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, in his emergency recommendation, said he would meet the promise of full aid to the schools with an extra state aid allotment in April. The Republicans called that a violation of the school law.

Marshall said the state motto should be changed to read:

"A crisis a day will keep the voters away on referendum election day."

A resolution has been introduced in the Senate to move up from November to April 7 the referendum election test of the income tax increase.

Marshall and three other Republicans, Reps. Edna Eads of Bonne Terre, William Moore of Kansas City and Stephen Burns of Des Peres, voted against the bill.

Hearnes had recommended appropriation of more than $21 million in emergency money. He said that would leave a cushion of only $2.5 million in the treasury by June 30.

But the House committee figured this was cutting it a little too fine. It lopped off a $7.3 million maximum security prison the governor had recommended, plus some lesser items.

The result was a $13.6 million bill with a treasury cushion close to $10 million to ward off any trouble if an economic recession should develop.

In debate the House rejected efforts to:

Put back the $7.3 million for the prison on the theory that aiding public schools was more immediately important. Instead the bill calls for $60,000 additional for guard salaries so a larger force can keep tighter control over hard core criminals.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
NATIONAL BLOOD DONOR MONTH

If you want to observe this month as something besides January, you can celebrate it as National Blood Donor Month. It has been so proclaimed by President Nixon in recognition of the vital role of the volunteer blood donor.

This was requested by the American Association of Blood Banks with endorsements by the American National Red Cross, American Medical Association, American Hospital Association and other organizations interested in a safe and adequate supply of blood in every community.

The importance of the volunteer blood donor cannot be overestimated. Surgery and therapy require more and more blood. A wire service item noted that 30 pints of blood were used in an effort to save the life of writer Jack Kerouac, who died recently in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Nearly every big hospital has a few children with leukemia or grave forms of anemia, who are being kept alive by blood transfusions. In all we are now using blood at the rate of 6.5 million pints per year with at least 80% of this coming from the volunteer unpaid donors, who are being honored this month.

Besides saving millions in medical costs, voluntary donations greatly reduce the hazards of infection, in transfusions; there is no reason for a volunteer to misrepresent his medical history.

We join Dr. Enold Dahlquist of Providence, Rhode Island, president of the American Association of Blood Banks, in urging everybody to join in observing this month.

If you are in good health, and between the ages of 21 and 66, you should join these modern heroes by becoming a donor yourself. Just call your local blood bank or collection center for an appointment.

A ladybug love-in began when an employee of the Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission and a farmer friend decided to import a supply from California to test their effectiveness in controlling insects harmful to young milo. Others joined in, the ladybugs were obtained and released and after six weeks, most farmers agreed the experiment was a success.

One farmer, after releasing two gallons of ladybugs in a 50-acre milo filed badly infested with greenbugs, reported his plants were nearly free of pests three days later.

One of the largest users of ladybugs distributed the beetles at the rate of one gallon per 15 acres at a cost of about 75 cents an acre. After viewing his successful reduction of plant pests, he asked, "Why pay $2.50 per acre to have milo sprayed when you can accomplish the job with 75 cents worth of ladybugs?" Most users also noted that the ladybug is superior to chemical pesticides in that the latter, while killing the target insect, also eliminates all of its natural enemies. UGLY, UGLY WORDS -- FROM THE PAST

More than a half-century ago, following World War I, when Germany was torn with internal strife, a raid on Communist headquarters in Dusseldorf resulted in the seizure of files labeled "Communist Rules for Revolution."

These rules have been reprinted many times in many publications, but memories are all short in this space age and we feel that no amount of coverage is too great to afford this disturbing, thought provoking subject.

Following are these so-called rules dictated by some long dead Communist -- read these words and ask yourself if it be possible that these rules are presently being used to hasten the death of our democracy:

1. Corrupt the young; get them away from religion. Get them interested in sex. Make them superficial; destroy their ruggedness.

2. Get control of all means of publicity, and thereby get people's minds off their government by focusing their attention on athletics, sexy books, plays and other trivialties.

3. Divide people into hostile groups by constantly harping on controversial matters of no importance.

4. Destroy the people's faith in their natural leaders by holding the latter up to contempt, ridicule and obloquy.

5. Always preach true democracy, but seize power as fast and as ruthlessly as possible.

6. By encouraging government extravagance, destroy its credit; produce fear of inflation, rising prices and discontent.

7. Foment strikes in vital industries; encourage civil disorders and foster a lenient and soft attitude on the part of the government toward these disorders.

8. By specious argument cause a breakdown of the old moral virtues; honesty, sobriety, continence, faith in the pledged word, ruggedness.

9. Cause the registration of all firearms on some pretext, with a view of confiscation of them and leaving the population helpless.

ORGANIZING THE CONSUMER

The fourth annual Consumer Assembly sponsored by the Consumer Federation of America, opens in Washington beginning Wednesday (Jan. 14).

Some of the consumer protective legislation now on the books might well be described as a case of deceptive packaging. Consumer advocates charge these laws often don't accomplish what they are intended to do.

One law that needs reassessing in their view is the 1966 Fair Packaging and Labeling Law, regarded as the first major national consumer law. An official of the Consumer Federation of America told Editorial Research Reports that "the law has never been enforced with vigor, and enough money has never been made available for enforcement."

A highlight of the Consumer Assembly will be hearing by a Senate Commerce subcommittee on the law's effectiveness. While the 1966 Act has produced some improvement in labeling information, important package reforms (such as doing away with fractional weights and reducing the size of a package if its contents are reduced) are left to the voluntary goodwill of the industry.

Writing of the burst of consumer legislation in the 1960s, Ralph Nader commented: "Something was done and will be done because the laws are on the books. But you can't grow a rose on top of a garbabe can."

The performance of federal agencies responsible for the safety of what people eat and drink offers little reassurance. Within the last year, one or another of these agencies has been accused of ineptitude, conflicts of interest or dereliction of duty. A report made in mid - 1969 by a panel of Food and Drug Administration officials estimated that two million to ten million Americans became ill every year from eating contaminated food. The panel concluded that the agency was "not equipped to cope with the challenge" of protecting the public from bad food, drugs and cosmetics.

Sensing the growing political appeal of consumer affairs, Congress added $341,000 for enforcement of the truth - in - packaging law to the now - stalled Health, Education and Welfare fiscal 1970 appropriations bill. President Nixon, who all but ignored the issue during his campaign, also has moved to capture the support of the voting consumer. Last fall he proposed making the Office of Consumer Affairs permanent and called for creation of a consumer protection division in the Justice Department. These reorganization bills remain in committee.

Consumerism is filtering down to the neighborhood supermarket and consumer protection agencies are popping up everywhere. Ten years ago, reports the CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR, no state had a consumer - affairs office. Now, 33 states have them -- with more on the way.

But it is no longer a matter of whether the large - economy sized package of soap powder contains more than the giant jumbo size. Consumerism is reaching out to include industrial safety, insurance availability as well as costs and environmental control. Nevertheless, consumers are showing signs of increasing frustration at what they feel is their lack of representation in a complex business - oriented society.

Business is facing "a consumer gap" paralleling the generation gap confronting American society at large, warns Herbert M. Cleaves, senior vice president of General Foods. The big question, however, is whether it can be bridged by changing a few labels.

Eating The Seed Corn

Some years abck there was a "Pat and Mike" story about socialism. Mike was saying that if Pat had two horses, Pat should give him one. The same was true with two mules, two cows, two goats, etc. Each time Pat grunted in understanding and agreement. Finally, when Mike for-instanced that two pigs should be shared, Pat stopped him.

"But Mike," he said, "you know I've got two pigs."

Before the public's sense of the ridiculous began to atrophy, that simple story was sufficient to remind all and sundry that socialism was essentially foolish and opposed to human nature.

Then, along came John Dewey and the collectivists of "progressive education." The trend they began was accelerated when the National Education Association endorsed the "conclusions and Recommendations" of the American Historical Association in 1934. These conclusions and recommendations were described by the British socialist Harold Laski as "an educational program for a socialist America."

Within a few years, the "deficit spending'. theory of another Briton, John Maynard Keynes, had been enthusiastically adopted by the Federal government. Although this theory is diametrically opposite to the policies which had made this nation the envy of the whole world for its material blessings - and freedoms, deficit spending has remained the dominant policy of our Federal government financing, without interruption.

On the reasons for wide acceptance of the Keynes theory and its ultimate consequences, Ludwig von Mises, perhaps the world's most respected economist, had this to say in his Planning For Freedom: "The unprecedented success of Keynesianism is due to the fact that it provides an apparent justification for the 'deficit spending' policies of contemporary governments. It is the pseudo-philosophy of those who can think of nothing else than to dissipate the capital accumulated by previous generations. . . .

"Notwithstanding all the passionate fulminiations of the spokesmen of governments, the inevitable consequences of inflationism and expansionism as depicted by the 'orthodox' economists are coming to pass. And then. . . people will discover that Keynes did not teach us how to perform the 'miracle of turning a stone into bread', but the not at all miraculous procedure of eating the seed corn."

LABOR UPMANSHIP

Little by little, workingmen are winning the struggle against their capitalist exploiters. Consider these recent gains in the area of time spent now working.

In Canada, a recent settlement gives Toronto Harbor Commissioners' employes time - and - a - half pay for vacations. The rationale, evidently, is that most poeple exert at least half again as much energy relaxing as they do when they're on the job.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- Jewish - American leaders are up in arms over a statement, attributed to Secretary of State William Rogers behind closed doors, that his Middle East concessions have their approval and that Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir's sharp objections were intended strictly for home consumption.

Rogers's alleged remards leaked out of a private meeting of the U.S. Infromation Agency's Advisory Commission. He was quoted as saying that "the American - Jewish leaders understand our position and approve it" and that Golda Meir's public response "does not reflect her government's point of view."

Rogers's words were reported immediately to Jewish leaders in New York City, who checked with one another and called Mrs. Meir in Israel. She told them bluntly that Rogers's statement was "false."

Since they also could find no leading Jews who had approved of the Middle East concessions, they asked every important Jewish organization to send representatives to Washington January 24-25 to join in a public portest against the State Department's wavering on the Middle East.

Jewish feelings are running so high that several depositors withdrew their money from the Chase Manhattan Bank after press reports ascribed a backstage role to David Rockefeller, the bank president, in guiding Middle East policy. Pressure was also brought upon New York State's Comptroller Arthur Levitt and New York City's Comptroller Abe Beame to withdraw public funds from the bank.

--WHAT HAPPENED--

The backstage developments that led to the State Department concessions, meanwhile, should be put on the reord to clear up misunderstandings. Here is what happened:

Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, after painstaking negotiations, agreed upon guidelines for a Middle East settlement. These were supposed to be given to Gunnar Jarring, The UN mediator, who would use the Soviet - American accord to bring pressure upon the Israelis and Egyptians to settle their differences.

Tentative arrangements had been made to bring the Israeli and Egyptian delegations into the same hotel, with Jarring shuttling back and forth between their rooms as a go - between. Both Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad had given Rogers their approval of these arrangements.

At this point, Rogers made the first public move by urging the concessions that he thought had been settled by Sisco and Dobrynin. The Secretary of State expected the Russians, who had made their share of concessions, to join in pushing the joint Soviet - American solution.

Instead, the Russians pulled a double - cross and delivered a note to the State Department, renouncing almost every agreement that Sisco and Dobrynin had reached.

Thus the hope of a Middle East settlement, like so many things peopie think they see on the desert, turned out to be a mirage. The Russians, apparently, prefer to continue the controlled tension that grips the Middle East today.

Note: as for David Rockefeller's role, he paid private calls in the Middle East upon Egypt's President Nasser and Jordan's King Hussein.

--ROCKEFFELLER'S ROLE--

After his return, Rockefeller happened to have a previous White House appointment to discuss Latin - American affairs with President Nixon. Rockefeller took advantage of the visit also to report on his talks with the Middle East leaders.

He told the President, for example, that Nasser had expressed unhappiness over his deteriorating relations with America, had declared his preference to work with the U.S. than with Russia, and had indicated an interest in a Middle East settlement that would open the Suez Canal and Gulf of Aqaba to Israel.

The President then told Rockefeller about Rogers's planned public statement, which had been under preparations for five weeks and already had been mimeographed. Rockefeller's report, therefore, obviously had no effect on the Rogers statement.

--HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES--

Sen. Ted Kennedy is deeply upset over the abuse his wife Joan has been receiving as a result of the Mary Jo Kopechne tragedy. While Joan was in the hospital to have her tonsils removed, a troubled Ted told friends, she received several nasty telephone calls ... The Cabinet was kept in session for more than two hours the other day until the distinguished participants began to squirm on their hard chairs. Finally President Nixon announced: "We are cutting all other budgets, but one thing I am going to fight for in the White House budget is to replace thses hard chairs."...The question came up at the Cabinet meeting of improving the interrelationship between Cabinet members. Agreeing, the President invited Cabinet members with recommendations for the Supreme Court to send their ideas "to John." This was a mischievous reference to Attorney General John Mitchell, whose recommendation of Judge Clement Haynsworth Backfired ... Contrary to press speculation, President Nixon didn't ask Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., to withdraw from the California Senate Race during their recent White House visit. Although they discussed the campaign briefly, Murphy took up most of the time urging the President to follow a stronger pro - Israel line in the Middle East.

DELIVERING NECESSITIES

The necessities for human life are many. Republic USA has been so successful in allowing our citizens to acquire the necessities and luxuries of life that we forget how big a job this is. We become impatient, forgetting that for most of the rest of the world, even the necessities are only wished - for dreams, while luxuries are unheard of, at least the luxuries we know.

Because our free way of life has allowed us to provide these necessities for ourselves, and to share much with those in other lands less free, and therefore less fortunate, our thougtless ones forget that necessities of life do not come free of effort.

A recital of the most constructive ways to meet the ordinary necessities of life may provide the solutions for our continued existence. Perpetuating the life of free Republic USA is vital to all, if slavery and the dark misery of famine and want are to be kept from our shores.

Any apparently sensational success, or promised success, which involves the liquidation of our Republic can only be a dismal failure. Its destruction means the destruction of human freedom in favor of communism, which never has been able to provide the necessities of life for its enslaved peoples.

Many feel that the life of our Republic can be redeemed only through crusades in which many will lend their talents, crusades which will command dedication and inspire the apathetic. Love of county is a requisite to our survival. It is a better, more noble path than destructive hatred, regardless of opinions which claim love of country is fatal to individual or organized initiative. It does require dedication sufficient to overcome criticism from opponents of freedom. HLH

MORE SHOOTING?
Yablonski's Supporters Ignore Other Violence

Washington, D.C.: -- There now are at least 1,000 special federal agents concentrating on the "Yablonski affair", as my British broadcasting bolleagues, with whom I've just talked by satellite, call the ghastly triple murder.

The British, the Japanese, the Australians, the newsmen the world over, are intrigued now and the best which can be told them as they telephone is that there is a big six-day hole in the last week of the lives of the rebellious miner.

That week that was is the Churchillian "riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

It can be reported that on Sunday, Dec. 29, 1969, Jock Yablonski telephoned his intimate friend and union campaign manager, Mike Trbovich, and asked him to drive to a funeral parlor the following Tuesday. Mr. Trbovich, who tells me he had seen "Jock" "every day since May 29" had other business and did not go.

Mr. Trbovich also tells me that he had visited the Yablonski home "every day" since May. But after Tuesday, Dec. 30, until the mysterious report of dead bodies in the Clarksville house - turned - mausoleum, no one heard from the Yablonskies. Why? Where were they? Why did they not rush here to the District of Columbia in which there has never been a mob or labor killing?

We may soon know. Mike Trbovich and Yablonski's attorney, Joe Rauh, say they'll never stop searching, pressuring and agitating. But their understandable emotion will only obscure the investigations.

The FBI now has talked with officials of the United Mine Workers (UMW,) attorneys, trustees and other specialists. The Bureau men are concentrating in Pittsburgh and are reviewing almost every minute of the lives of the three who were murdered.

The Labor Dept.'s special bureau, headed by Assistant Secretary of Labor Bill Usery, at whom Diogenes could have made his first and last stop, has 200 men in the field checking the UMW's 1,604 locals -- 800 of which are large and will require time - consuming auditing. It should be noted, too, that a Labor Dept. probe means investigation of UMW President Tony Boyle's charges against Jock Yablonski as well as counselor Joe Rauh's allegations. And there are serious charges on both sides.

This chase now is as heavily saturated with special federal and state agents as the pursuit of the slayer of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. The political pressure on the government, the White House and the Cabinet is unbelievable. This is a super man hunt -- if the killers can be deemed human. Rarely have so many U. S. Senators and members of the House zeroed in and demanded action. Bluntly they are accusing the government of collusion and culpability.

There is for example, New Jersey's U. S. Senator Harrison Williams Jr., head of the Senate Labor subcommittee. He wants a hearing. He wants Secretary of Labor George Shultz to testify immediately. Yet this is the same Senator Williams who, before the FBI's electronic listening tapes were released in his home state, casually said that reports of Mafia activity were exaggerated and pooh-poohed them.

Also unhappy is the late Yablonski's dedicated lawyer, the superdynamic Joseph Rauh. He is just not satisfied. He reiterates that "what is needed now is a full-scale investigation bya task force employing the full forces of the federal government -- the FBI, Labor Dept., Internal Revenue Service, Justice Dept., and other agencies..."

Fine. If we're looking into violence in unions outside the AFL-CIO (and the UMW is) why not unleash this task force on all violence in the field? Why concentrate the energies of such a task force only on one tragedy? Why not expand this investigation into the teamsters' arena?

There, throughout the Midwest, we will find that some 30,000 owner - driver truck steel haulers have been trying to opt out of the brotherhood. There is the same kind of violence which Mr. Rauh says he has observed in the miners' election. Much more, I suggest. There are grim threats to men and homes. There have been bombings, shotgun and rifle shootouts, battles with bolts, nuts and rocks. There have been blastings of terminals, trucks and the magazine headquarters of the opposition. Men have fought each other with pipes, baseball bats and golf clubs.

No one knows who is responsible for this violence or the death of at least one man.

But the fact is, and I have just returned from the field, there is a war. It will get worse during the current critical freight - trucking contract negotiations.

The rebel Teamsters have organized something called FASH -- Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers -- and want to run their own union or at least their autonomous section of the Teamsters.

It's all very mysterious here too. No one knows who has bombed the terminal or the opposition magazine or homes or trucks. But this is no charade. The haulers move about 50 per cent of the nation's finished steel products from city to city.

I could list reports of other violence in other fields where other men have died or been hurt or bombed in their homes or insurgent leaders have been threatened with death.

If there is some common mysterious force behind all this perhaps the best way to ease some of America's tragic pains is to get that task force, to take those hundreds of agents and set them up under an ad hoc central "disk" and search out the sluggers and gunmen.

Perhaps the "Yablonski affair" in all its gruesomeness can catelyze an awareness of these hidden wars.

The Yablonskis are dead. Let's try to head off other violence, anywhere and everywhere. A task force is a splendid idea -- but not just for Clarksville, Pa. There are hundreds of rebels. It's time they got support. Let's have no more blood baths

Charming Fellow Good Catch, But Sets Rules For Intended Bride...

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going with an attractive bachelor for seven months. He is considered a good catch, but he is 14 years my senior (I am 22) and I'm a little uneasy about a man of his financial status who still lives with his mother.

Last night he said, half - joking, "I'd marry you if you agreed, in writing, to do these five things." I asked, "What are the five things?" He then whipped out a piece of paper and handed me a pencil. Here is the list of requirements.

(1) I will change the bed linen every night.

(2) I will wear makeup to bed — no hair rollers or face cream.

(3) I will get dressed in the morning — no bathrobes or housecoats at breakfast.

(4) If I snore, I agree to have surgery and get the snore fixed.

(5) I will not speak in the morning until I am spoken to.

His requests are not unreasonable, but I resent his attitude. What do you think? -- Pie Face

Dear Pie: I think you ought to let his mother keep him for another 36 years.

Dear Ann Landers: A close friend of mine has a daughter who was always sensitive and never got along well with children her own age. Lila kept to herself mostly or tagged along with her mother.

Last year Lila, who was then 15, attached herself to a kind - hearted boy who felt sorry for her. After a while, he saw she was getting too serious and tried to break off with her. Lila kept chasing him and he couldn't escape from her clutches. Now she's gone and got herself pregnant.

The boy is only sixteen and marriage is out of the question. So is support. He doesn't have anything and neither do his folks.

Lila's mother wants her to keep the baby because she thinks it will help her grow up. I've been asked for my advice and want your views. -- No Ann Landers

Dear No: It is impossible for a girl to get herself pregnant. She had to have some help. Even though the boy is only 16, he should not be considered an innocent bystander. A lawyer can decide what his legal responsibilities are.

I hope Lila will give the child up for adoption. She sounds unstable and immature. Urge the mother to take the girl to a counselor. Both mother and daughter need professional help.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter brought her college roomate home for the holidays. We don't know much about the girl, except that she comes from a wealthy family. I was annoyed at the way our daughter served her friend breakfast in bed, picked up after her, rinsed out her lingerie and acted like a personal maid.

I feel this shows very poor breeding on the part of the guest. No matter what she is accustomed to at home, she shouldn't expect her hostess to wait on her. I think Miss Social Register has a lot to learn. Do you agree? -- Disgusted Mom

Dear Mom: Never mind about Miss Social Register, concern yourself instead with your daughter's role in this little vignette. Why does she behave like a handmaiden? Where is her dignity and self - esteem? True, the guest should not have used her so badly, but the real problem here is your daughter's doormat tendencies.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze And You - For Teen - Agers Only," by Ann Landers.

Girl, 14, accused Of Murder, Past Childhood

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen years after her birth, Debra Mattingly—everyone called her "Muffin"—could say she'd been around.

She had known detention homes, summer camps, courtrooms, hippie crash pads—everything, in short, but stability.

So it was easy, when Muffin Mattingly was charged last week with the murder of her adoptive father, a minor District of Columbia official, to quote her friends that she was "tough as nails, the kind of chick who eats nails."

The newspaper pictures—a short, blondish girl looking much older than 14, dragging on a cigarette, dressed in old jeans, sweatshirt and mackinaw jacket—made you forget that Muffin Mattingly was still a child.

And it took a few more questions to elicit the information that for all her tough, dirty talk, her love for motorcycles, her fondling of knives, Muffin Mattingly was really a sad little girl who had been kicked around almost since birth.

Also charged with the Jan. 8 murder in the suburban Arlington, Va., home, where Richard L. Mattingly apparently was strangled by having a crowbar pressed against his throat, are two of the wandering young men whose noisy, free lifestyle drew Muffin into their dropout circle.

Three other men are free on bond as material witnesses to the murder. Another alleged witness is a 15-year-old runaway from Amsterdam, N.Y.—a girl known in hippie circles as "Pegasus," whose real name is being kept under wraps by authorities.

The gang that frequented Dupont Circle, a warm-weather hippie gathering-place, knew Muffin as "Little Spirit." Eugene Comeau, 19, describing himself as a onetime Hell's Angel from California, was called "Big Spirit." Muffin recently telephoned a counselor and said she had married Comeau, and that they were sitting around fondling their knives.

Comeau is now one of Muffin's co-defendants. So is another wanderer said to be much taken with Comeau's alleged violent fantasies—Kenneth Hit er, a 21-year-old AWOL Marine.

Muffin's parents, destitute, gave her up for adoption when she was only 9 months old. Mattingly, an official of the District of Columbia Board of Condemnation was sued for separation five times by his wife. She succeeded the sixth time, in 1962, and Muffin went with her.

When she died, the girl rejoined Mattingly, and for the next three years life was a succession of runaways and wanderings.

As police tell it, Muffin, Pegasus, Comeau and Hitner went back to Mattingly's house that Thursday night to pick up some of her things. An argument broke out, police said, and Mattingly was killed. His body was found in the basement furnace room.

An apparently undelivered letter to his daughter was found in Richard Mattingly's belongings.

"Dear Muffin," it said, "If you come home during my absence today please leave the key so Dad won't have to go to the expense of changing the lock again.

"Needless to say, Dad is disappointed in you!!!

"... You have caused your adoptive father great heartache, worry and disappointment ... Sooner or later, you will be picked up, 'busted' as you say, and Dad will not be able to help you."

Leaders Named For Symington Women's Group

JEFFERSON CITY, MISSOURI - Mrs. Marie Roche, President of the Missouri Federation of Women's Democratic Clubs, and Mrs. Barbara Wolken, immediate past president of the Cole County Women's Democratic Club, were named today to lead the statewide Women's Campaign Committee for Senator Stuart Symington.

Mrs. Roche, 4110 Thekla, St. Louis, will be chairman and Mrs. Wolken, 1725 Southwest Blvd., Jefferson City, will be secretary.

Charles L. Bacon, Kansas City, Chairman of Missourians for Symington, announced that Mrs. Roche and Mrs. Wolken had accepted the appointments and would name others to their committee from each congressional district.

Bacon previously announced that Charles H. Howard of Jefferson City would serve as vice chairman, Ben Parnell of Branson as treasurer and Denton Smith, Springfield, as finance chairman of Missourians for Symington.

Mrs. Roche organized the First Ward Democratic Women's Club in St. Louis 22 years ago. She served as president for two years and is still active in the organization. She was St. Louis City chairman and coordinator for a tea for presidential candidate, John F. Kennedy, in 1960 which was attended by 5,000 persons. She has coordinated scores of campaign activies over the years.

Mrs. Wolken has been a member of the Cole County Club for 10 years and served as president last year. She is a court reporter.

"Mrs. Roche and Mrs. Wolken have played an active role in the Democratic Party for many years," Bacon said.

Poll At SEMO Supports Equality in Marriage

CAPE GIRARDEAU - A poll of about 650 Southeast Missouri State College students over the past five years shows most of them favor the concept of equality in marriage, reports Mrs. Mary Blackiston, assistant professor of home economics.

Participating in the poll were students enrolled in Mrs. Blackiston's personal and family relationship classes. Most of them were women, she said, but the men polled were also equalitarian in their views, but not quite as much so.

The questionnaire used in the poll was structured so the students' answers could be categorized into either the traditional or the qualitarian concept of the marriage role. The equalitarian concept, Mrs. Blackiston explained, signifies a sharing by marriage partners of responsibility, decision making, and discipline duties.

The home economics professor said the swing toward this concept is most evident in the feeling of most of those pooled that the care of children is a responsibility of both husband and wife.

"In the traditional concept this would have been the wife's role," she said.

Mrs. Blackiston said the change in attitude from the traditional to the equalitarian concept toward marriage is part of a nationwide trend. "The change has been a little slower here," she said, "because people are a little more conservatitive in the Midwest."

MATTHEWS' Kara Nunn (41) eyes the basket as he heads down the free throw lane for a layup during basketball action against Richland last night. Rebel defenders are Mark Peters (20), Barry Gaylord (background) and John Sims. Matthews won the game 56-46 to snap a two game losing streak.

Matthews Streak Ends; Pirate Players Return

ESSEX — Matthews snapped a two- game losing streak and toppled the Daily Standard's 10th rated Richland Rebels, 56-46, last night as Clarence Brooks and Carl Bishop returned to the Pirates, basketball lineup after missing the team's last battle.

Coach Jim Hart's Pirates averted the foul situation which has pleagued the Matthews quintet all season, but found the chairty shots hard to score as the team netted on 10 of 21 attempts.

Both squads were relatively cold from the floor, as each squad had trouble connecting on hits shots, accounting for the low score.

For the second straight game, Matthews trailed in the rebounding department 44-38 as sophomore John Sims led the Rebels in that department and the scoring with 19 in each.

Andrew Richardson paced the Pirates scoring with 21 points and got assistance from Bishop and Nara Nunn who dropped in 16 and 11 respectively.

Richland salvaged a split as its B-team picked up a 52-50 victory in overtime. Rodney McKeller led the Rebel scoring with 16 points while Raymond Bledsoe paced Matthews with 15 points.

Both teams head for their respective county tournament sites as action begins next week in the New Madrid and Stoddard county leagues.

Mules Beat Camels, 66-61

CAMPBELL — The Bernie Mules, lead by a 23- point production from senior Don Botch, defeated the Campbell Camels in a 66-61 close fought basketball contest. Campbell split the night's wins with a 67-50 B-game victory over the Mules.

Clay KO'd In 13th

PHILDELPHIA (AP)— Cassius Clay lost a computerized fight to Rocky Marciano but he didn't lose his sense of humor, his penchant for challenging poetry, or his verbal jabs at rival heavyweight Joe Frazier.

The film, staged before Marciano's death last year and screened in some 500 movie houses Tuesday night, showed Clay a 13th round knockout victim.

"It takes a good champion to lose like that," Clay told a newsman who had sat next to him in the darkened theater and had taken a couple of right elbow jabs in the ribs as the deposed heavyweight watched the action.

"Hey, watch that," said the worried newsman, a flyweight in size. "I'm not in the ring with you."

"Yeah, but that's fighting up there, and real good camera action," Clay replied, laughing. He sat in his shirt sleeves, his suit jacket held by his wife and a friend sat on his left trying to catch every one of his words on a tape recorder.

In the early rounds Clay took the lead. He said he was only watching the action - but he kept his eyes intently on the screen, sometimes rocking in his seat, his head often bobbing forward as he threw a punch.

"I'm sorry Rocky wasn't here to see it," Clay said. "He wanted to see it bad. You know there were seven different endings, and I had won twice by knockouts. I didn't know how it was going to come out, but that computer must have been in Alabama."

When Clay was counted out, he slumped just a little in his seat. Then he called out to the crowd of more than 400 already starting for the exits in the downtown Stanley Theater:

"All right, now let's see the real fight."

Clay, signing autographs willingly, seemed to enjoy the crowd that pressed around him, slapping his back, grabbing at his big hands.

"Joe Frazier wouldn't like this in his town," said Clay, whose title was stripped away in 1967 when he refused induction into the Army. "Or is it his home town?"

Clay this month began negotiations to complete purchase of a $92,000 home in Philadelphia's swank Overbrook section. He's now living there with his family pending final settlement.

He emphasized several times between screen rounds that he would never fight professionally again, and that the film battle was his last. But suddenly he'd stand up and about, "I'd wup Frazier anytime, all the time."

Once he waxed poetically:

"Joe I'm going to come out smoking, but I'm not going to be joking.

"It may shock and amaze yer, to see the destruction of Frazier."

Frazier is recognized as Heavyweight champion in Pensylvania, New York and several other states. He is to fight Jimmy Ellis, the National Boxing Association champion, later this year.

It All Averages Out

By JOEL M. VANCE

Averages are yardsticks by which the average man can measure himself and say, "Gee, I wish I could do that well."

So it's interesting to note the average daily bag limits of various types of Missouri game in a publication enchantingly titled "Post- Season Game Harvest Mail Survey 1968-69" which is published by the Department of Conservation.

What the random survey did was take nearly 11,000 permit holders and ask them a bunch of questions by mail. Nearly 60 per cent of those questioned replied.

Except for rabbit hunting which has been in the doldrums, Missourians have enjoyed some outstanding hunting for upland game in the past few years.

The average squirrel hunter got 2.38 squirrels per day of hunting, in 1968 highest since 2.41 in 1961. Since 1969 is expected to be about the same for squirrels, the average hunter should take about two squirrels and one- third each hunting trip.

(About now, the average squirrel hunter will be saying, "Gee, I wish I could do that well," or something similar if less printable.)

The average daily bag on quail was 3.16 in 1967 and 3.15 in 1968. Since the 1969 season is rated nearly as good as 1968, the average hunter should get three quail a day and if he doesn't, he can blame it on his gun and buy a new one. (And try telling that nursery story to your wife!)

Dove hunters averaged about 2½ birds a day over the 1967 and 1968 seasons. Where pheasant hunting is legal (the 17 northwest Missouri counties which have ringnecks), hunters average about 2.25 birds a season.

The only game for which there was absolutely no daily bag, even for the best hunters, was the time- honored sport of fox chasing because the fox never is killed. It remains an Ozark pastime. The highest percent of hunting pressure came from the Ozark plateau.

That area also had the highest number of fox chasers, 2,479, but the western Ozark border fox chasers spent the most days (or nights) in the field-- 30.64.

The northeast riverbreak area of Missouri contributed the most days afield after raccoons, and, by far, the most hunters and the highest percentage of hunting pressure.

The average daily bag on raccoons was 1.44. Woodchuck plunkers averaged 1.25 whistlepigs per day, with the highest (1.63) falling to Ozark plateau sharpshooters.

Crow shooters on the northwest prairie are likely to lead everybody -- at least they did in 1968- 69. They took 5.16 crows a day on the average and no other region was even close.

On the other hand, there were fewer crow hunters in that area, they didn't hunt as often and the total harvest was far lower (19,530) than the Ozark plateau area (72,639).

The 1969 duck season was the best in years, so figures for 1968 probably wouldn't apply, but goose hunters averaged .55 bird statewide per day and duck hunters .90 bird per day.

That's how the average hunters did and do. Now, as for the rest of u .....

A SQUIRREL in a tree is one of Missouri's more familiar sights. Bushytail hunting in Missouri continued good in 1969 and will re-open May 30, 1970. (Department of Conservation photo)

WARDELL — The North Pemiscot Mustangs galloped to their ninth cage victory last night, defeating the Hayti Indians 74-62. The Mustangs moved their Bootheel Conference record to 3-2 for the season.

In moving their overall record to 9-5 the Mustangs put six men in the win figure column with Don Smith leading the way by collecting 16. Tony White and Bob McCulloch added 13 and 12 respectively. Terry McCulloch, John Smith, and Claude Robinson each ended the game with 11. Terry McCulloch also grabbed 10 rebounds.

It was a lopsided game as the Mustangs would take off with a tremendous lead and the Hayti Indians would then bounce right back to stay in the game. Hayti at one time held the lead in the third quarter, 41-40.

Leading the way for the Indians scoring attack Larry Weatherspoon as he grabbed 12 rebounds and pumped in 21 points for high game honors.

The JV Indians kept Hayti from losing both games as they won, 79-60. Tony Tuff led the way for the Hayti warpath as he gained 28 points with teammate Trotter shooting for 23. The Mustangs were paced by Ron Young with 15 and Bobby Jennings with 12.

Orton Says Suit Is Political

CARUTHERSVILLE, MO. - Sheriff Clyde Orton charged Monday that the political ambitions of Attorney General John C. Danforth are behind Danforth's suit to oust him from office on grounds of "willful and fraudulent violation and neglect of official duties."

"It is common knowledge," Orton said in a prepared statement, "that Mr. Danforth, the only Republican holding state office, has high political ambitions to be U. S. senator or governor of the state of Missouri."

Orton, who is a Pemiscot County Democrat, also charged The St. Louis Globe - Democrat, which printed a series dealing with liquor raids in the county, is promoting Danforth "as the Globe did when Mr. Danforth ran for attorney general."

The Globe - Democrat was labeled by Orton as "the leading Republican newspaper in the state."

Danforth's suit for ouster of Orton followed raids on cafes in Pemiscot County accused of selling liquor or beer without licenses. The raids were by state liquor agents and highway patrolmen.

In his suit, filed last week, Danforth contended that while Orton has been sheriff there have been "numerous and repeated open and notorious violations of the criminal laws of Missouri with respect to the sale of liquor and beer and to gambling, which violations were widespread and general" in Pemiscot County.

A state liquor control supervisor, Harry Wiggins, said officials from Albama and Mississippi had complained that illegal whisky was being shipped from Pemiscot County into dry counties in their states.

"I welcome the opportunity to prove my innocence in an open and fair hearing," Orton said in his statement.

When Rhinoceroses Get Into Domestic Spat, Watch out

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When the St. Louis Zoo's pair of white rhinoceroses, Dinka and Joyce, had a domestic tiff, something's got to give.

When they had a quarrel in 1966, Dinka lost one of his 29-inch horns when he charged Joyce and missed, then ran into a wall.

Earlier this week, Dinka lost patience with his 6,000- pound mate, picked her up on his regenerated horn and tried to throw her through the bars of their cage.

He didn't but Joyce's bulk bent some of the thick steel bars of the pen. Joyce came out of it with minor abrasions.

Miss Missouri Pageant to Be Held at Mexico

MEXICO, Mo. (AP) — The Miss Missouri pageant will be held July 9-10-11 at the Missouri Military Academy fieldhouse in Mexico.

The building seats 3,500. All judges will be from out-of-state.

The Mexico Jaycees are the new sponsors and they have pledged efforts to raise a greater sum for scholarship prizes than the $3,000 offered last year in Springfield.

The sponsors also plan to limit the entry list to 32 contestants.

Chiropractors to Meet in Ironton

IRONTON — The Southeast Missouri Chiropractic Association will hold its bi-monthly meeting, Sunday, in Ironton.

Dr. Larry Webster of Malden, president of the association, states that the major portion of the meeting will concern a new state law. This law requires insurance companies doing business in Missouri to pay chiropractic claims. Other portions of the meeting will concern correct posture week, and career days in junior colleges.

Towboat Pushes Through Ice

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A towboat pushing upstream in the ice-jammed Mississippi River succeeded in opening a channel to about 24 miles north of Cairo but still faced more than 20 miles of ice to the north.

The effort to break the gorge was in a race against time before a predicted drop in temperatures refreezes the ice pack.

The ice gorge extends from near Cairo northward to just below Diversion Channel.

A second major gorge extends for about 29 miles northward from 10 miles south of Chester, Ill.

The gorges formed when heavy ice floes, created from bitter cold temperatures last week, jammed the channels. Large quantities of shipping have been tied up here, at Cairo and elsewhere waiting for the ice packs to break.

Warmer temperatures this week have softened the ice, but the moderation may not last long enough.

The forecast is for colder temperatures and this may nullify progress in breaking the gorge.

Clearing the way this morning was the towboat Lady Kimberly, Wm. Busch, a Corps of Engineers officiai here, reported.

The boat is trying to crack a channel in the ice and five or six boats are behind it seeking to keep the chanel open, Mr. Busch said.

Little activity was reported this morning on the north gorge which, Busch observed, seemed to be tighter than south one. The area was fog- bound this morning.

Busch said that 15 towbats and 375 barges are tied up in the river harbor at Cairo waiting for the ice to clear and eight to 10 boats and possibly 40 barges are in between the gorges in the Cape Girardeau area.

Different boats at the Cairo end have been chipping away at the gorge. Some have had to retire because of damaged hulls, Mr. Busch reported.

If the Lady Kimberly can reach Mile 30- about six miles above its morning progress point - it will have about two miles of open water before the ice pack starts again, Busch reported.

Dear Sir:

I cannot understand some of the people of our country. Are we not fighting in Vietnam just as we did in Korea to prevent the spread of communism and the enslavement of free people? I completely disagree with those who would have us leave our task undone. Do these people not care about the fate of their brothers or do they believe only those living within our national boundaries are our brothers? I believe we should live with all mankind but not with the attitude that we sit safely in our homes and watch the world become enslaved around us. Do they honestly believe if this happens, we will be spared the same fate?

Would they who would have us completely withdraw simply chalk it up to a bad experience and therefore a waste of lives of those who have died? To those who have been wounded, would they say "Thank you very much but it was all a terrible mistake. You have wasted your time and your healthy bodies." What answers will they give future generations when asked why we did not help free people stay free? This seems to be the easy way of dropping our responsibility for our brothers but what a terrible responsibility of not caring must be accepted in its place.

With so many people anti-Vietnam, anti- establishment, anti- everything, I fear for the future of our country, that we will ourselves lose our democracy because of the many so willing to sit by apathetically and not accept the responsibility for our continuing freedom. I cannot accept demonstrations by protestors as responsible acts of protecting freedom and our country.

My desire is to see peace but not at the expense of freedom of any nation. My husband is at present in Vietnam. Should he not return safely home, who will dare explain to our four teenage children it was all a terrible mistake for they also believe in the cause that has sent him there.

I ask each person who believes as I do to join this letter campaign, writing to congressmen, senators, the President and to editors to make known his or her views so the negative advertisement which has too long dominated our news media will be counter-balanced. I cannot believe this negative attitude represents the majority of Americans. Write so our President will fully know he has our backing for he cannot see all local shows of support. It is time we make ourselves known, not by demonstrations, but by quiet advertisement.

SEDALIA - This week is designated National Jaycee Week, observing the founding of the United States Jaycees in St. Louis.

The Jaycees will celebrate their 50th anniversary at the annual meeting in St. Louis, Missouri, during June. It is a return to the birthplace of the young men's organization, founded in that city by a concerned young man named Henry Giessenbier in 1920.

During their 50 year history, the Jaycees have grown to a membership of more than 325,000 young men between the ages of 21 and 36 and now have chapters in more than 6,500 communities in all 50 States and the District of Columbia.

These young men are trying to solve the problems of today in human resource development, environmental improvement, legislative action, individual and spiritual development, health, recreation and sports, safety provention and law enforcement, menal health and mental retardation and community relations.

Jaycees are concerned, committed and involved with making our communities better places to live in the future while training themselves to be tomorrow's leaders.

Information concerning the Jaycees can be obtained from any Jaycee Chapter or Ken Moore, Executive Vice President, Missouri Jaycees, Sedalia, Missouri.

Inflation Boosts Wishing Well Proceeds

CAMDENTON, Mo. (AP) — Inflation is raising revenues at the wishing well, Eddie Miller, manager of Bridal Cave at the Nearby Lake of the Ozarks, said Thursday.

Bridal Cave's wishing well is cleaned out yearly of its coins and the money is put into a college scholarship fund for a Camdenton High School graduate. Miller said among the coins recovered for 1969 there were more than four times the number of quarters and nearly twice the number of dimes as in the previous two years.

The sum collected for 1969, Miller said, was $423. Total for the previous two years was $457.05. The number of visitors to the cave was nearly the same each year, Miller added.

MISS ANNIE McADOO, who retired Saturday after 32 years with the Brown Shoe Co. factory in Charleston is shown at the sewing machine she has operated most of that time as a fancy stitcher. - Charleston Enterprise - Courier Photo.

Bertrand Woman Retires At Charleston Plant

CHARLESTON — Saturday was a big day in the life of Miss Annie McAdoo of route one, Bertrand.

After 32 years of work at the Brown Shoe Co. factory Miss Annie retired Saturday at the age of 63. She became 64 on Sunday. There were no ceremonies to mark the occasion; just the shutting down of her sewing machine, saying goodbye to friends, and going home.

Miss McAdoo, who lives with her brother and sister-in- law about four miles southeast of Bertrand, went to work for Brown Shoe on January 3, 1938, just six weeks after the factory opened in November, 1937. She has never since been off the payroll, and at the time of her retirement stood third on the seniority list a the factory behind Mrs. Marguerite Hampton and Miss Garnet Conyers, both of whom went to work for Brown Shoe in December, 1937.

"I have to give credit to the Lord for helping me to stay on the job all this time," Miss McAdoo says. Actually, she said Friday, her perfect attendance record was spoiled in 1959 when she had to take sick leave for two weeks due to an operation on her hand. Reflecting a refreshing, if somewhat old-fashioned devotion to her work, Miss McAdoo says she had the operation performed at the beginning of a two- week vacation, hoping she could return to work immediately after the vacation.

"I was awfully disappointed when the doctor told me it would take an extra two weeks for the hand to heal," she says. Factory Manager L. L. Clough said Miss McAdoo's attendance record is exceptional.

Asked how many shoes she has helped make over her 32-year career, Miss McAdoo only smiles. Her supervisor, however, says she stitches some 1,400 shoes a day, and that based on 50 weeks per year, five days per week for 32 years, the total number of shoes could be as high as 11½ million.

Her retirement plans? Miss Annie says part of the time she plans to do nothing at all, but she doesn't intend to just sit all the time. "I like to garden," she says, "both flowers and vegetables," and "I need to walk about four or five miles a day, so I will probably do a lot of walking," she adds.

Cantrell Calls for Emergency Funds to Continue Medicaid

ST. LOUIS (AP)—State Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, said Tuesday some nursing homes in Missouri are afraid of losing Medicaid payments in April and are returning Medicaid-supported patients to mental hospitals.

He said Farmington State Hospital has taken back a number of patients. Cantrell, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, urged that the state legislature, appropriate emergency funds to continue Medicaid.

Cantrell spoke Tuesday at a meeting of the Missouri Association of Social Work.

Another speaker, Sister Michael, administrator of St. Anne's Nursing Home in North St. Louis, said Medicare has become "a shaky business." She said some patients placed by doctors in nursing homes under Medicare are later found by insurance companies not to qualify. She said this places a financial burden on the patient and nursing home.

Dennis Shaw, San Diego State quarterback, led the nation's collegiate football players in total offense in 1969 with 3,186 yards and 45 touchdowns. He scored six TDs and passed for 39 others.

To the Editor:

I received a letter recently from my son, serving with the Air Force in Cam Ran Bay, South Vietnam, which I thought described the feelings of our servicemen there. The letter read in part:

"It's not the kids that fight the war, it's the politicians. The lower our morale here in Vietnam. It's the Senators that have come out and repeatedly said we servicemen are sinners for being over here, when we're serving our country.

"Many of us would rather be home. Yet they call us killers, even murderers now, because of the My Lai incident, and I think that this is really most disheartening.

"I think if you all back home really knew the situation over here, our servicemen would not be called murderers.

"Our servicemen go in and sweep through a village and there will be nothing but civilians in there. They no sooner get halfway out of town and the civilians they have just passed have taken arms up and are shooting at them.

"Little kids go in and our servicemen give them candy, and they found out that what these kids are really going in for is to steal hand grenades for the Viet Cong. These are little kids four, five, six, seven, and eight years old.

"This isn't a war fought like the second World War, where Americans wore American uniforms, and the Germans wore German uniforms, and the Japanese wore Japanese uniforms.

"This is a war that takes on different shapes and different modes. It's a war that's completely different than what the world has ever known or ever fought before. I wish people back home would realize this..."

Fire Damages Ford Plant

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A fire early today damaged a portion of the Ford Motor Co.'s assembly plant in suburban Hazelwood.

G. M. Crittenden, industrial relations manager for the plant which turns out Ford's Mercury cars, said only a cleanup crew was on duty when the fire broke out and no one was injured.

The blaze erupted in "a final spray painting booth," Crittenden said, and was confined to the booth and the oven area when the paint is baked onto the autos.

Crittenden said the fire was completely extinguished by 4:30 a.m. but the cause and amount of damage remain undetermined.

Crittenden said both day and evening shifts, a total of more than 3,000 persons, were being advised not to report for work today.

Caruthersville Girl Wins Speech Event

Miss Terry Beck, a senior at Caruthersville high school, has been declared the winner of the 14th District oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion.

She delivered her talk entitled "The Crisis in America Today" in Legion Hall.

Miss Beck was the only one of four scheduled contestants to show up for the contest, the others withdrawing because of bad weather and hazardous driving conditions.

Although she automatically became the winner, she was scored by the judges in attendance. The district covers 10 counties.

Miss Beck will now enter the zone contest to be held Feb. 8 in St. Louis. The zone winner will go to the state contest and the state winner to the national contest.

Former U.S. Secretary of Treasury Dies

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) - Former Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, one of the strong men of President Dwight D. Eisenhower's cabinet from 1953 to 1957, died Tuesday night at University Hospital.

Humphrey, who was 79, entered the hospital last Aug. 27 after suffering an apparent heart stroke. He returned Dec. 27 and was admitted to the cardiac unit.

President Eisenhower once remarked of his treasury secretary: "When George speaks, we all listen."

A gifted businessman, Humphrey in 1953 gave up a reported annual income of more than $300,000 to take the $22,500 - a - year cabinet post. At the time he was chairman of the board of M.A. Hanna Co. of Cleveland, then a leading iron ore, coal and Great Lakes shipping firm.

Humphrey was an economic conservative and a firm believer in a balanced national budget, in seeking to curb the expansion of government spending, he succeeded in arranging that no decision on proposals for governmental monetary outlays should be final until the Treasury had taken a look at them.

Despite his efforts to have federal outlays held down, there were business recessions in 1953 and 1957.

On the verge of his retirement from his cabinet post, Humphrey said a better world situation would permit government spending cuts.

Born in Cheboygan, Mich., March 8, 1890, he was graduated from the University of Michigan and the Michigan Law School.

He joined the M. A. Hanna Co. in 1917 and became president in 1929.

DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir:

In the words of UN Secretary General U. Thant in his recent annual report, the UN's financial situation "remains precarious" and is a "matter of serious concern." The UN, in fact, is near bankruptcy. As of this summer, members owed $130 million in uncollected assessments. Several nations, most of them communist, have declared they have no intention of paying. Despite this substantial deficit, the UN has constantly increased its operating budget. For this past year it was $200 million, not including the budgets of special agencies. The Economic and Social Development Fund alone is to spend $250 million in 1970, up from $200 million in thypreviousyear. Since the U. S. A. pays about half of the UN expenditures, our taxpayers will "contribute" about $100 million to this UN aid program. Our own aid program is wasteful, but it ss even worse to use taxpayers' money in a foreign - aid program over which our Congress has no control whatsoever.

Constructively,

Reading Taught By Teacher Team

By SHIRLEY PRITCHETT

EAST PRAIRIE — Team teaching is an innovation in the A. J. Martin elementary school.

Two sections of fifth grade students are participating in a reading program taught by Miss Mary Williams and Mrs. Michael Euer, assisted by teachers aide, Mrs. Floyd Myers.

The team approach permits teachers to pool their creative ideas, knowledge and talents to meet objectives and provide better instruction and greater attention to individual students.

The classroom is a beehive of activity. Students are divided into six groups, with no more than 12 in each and on different projects. These groupings enable students to work with others of approximately the same ability and reading speed. Students were grouped once before under the modified Joplin Plan used in the school before they were placed in the same room.

Miss Williams and Mrs. Euer each have two separate groups to divide their time between during a class period.

A typical class period finds them introducing and talking about stories to one group; instructing another in how to do their free- time activities; while still another section is working with instructional equipment. Their aide listens to oral readings while keeping an eye on the section which is busy with independent activity.

Instructional equipment used in the team- teaching program includes: cyclo-teachers (programmed learning) vocalette tapes on reading skills; SRA kits in reading comprehension, spelling, or map skills; Webster reading kits; flash-x machines, for reading rate increase; and individual viewing film strips and programmed learning books.

Once a week, each group is given free time to read any book which interests it from the classroom library. This library is supplied with new books each month from the school's central library. Selected on all reading levels there are fine arts, social sciences, and Science books from which to choose.

In using the program of team teaching, Mrs. Euer said:

"We find that students are grouped more nearly to their abilities, and as teachers, we have considerably more opportunity and time for individualized instruction."

MATTHEWS - Frank A. Stanley was guest of honor Sunday when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy K. Stanley entertained with a dinner in observance of his birthday. Other guests were Mrs. Stanley and their children, Dana, Vinn and Laura Jean; Mr. and Mrs. Vann Robbs, and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Lathum and daughter.

Mrs. Lucille Givens attended the Winter Conference of Elementary School Principals in Memorial Hall at State College campus in Cape Girardeau last Thursday. Dr. Carl C. Ferle associate professor of elementary education at the University of Missouri at Columbia spoke to the 70 administrators attending on the subject of "Individually Prescribed Institutions."

Bruce Eby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Eby, returned last week from London, England where he has been stationed with the armef forces for thypast two years. He expects to enroll at the University of Missouri - Columbia for the second semester.

Mrs. Armon Keaster and baby son of Portageville were released from Missouri Delta Community Hospital and are visited in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Scott, Sr. The child is the second son and child in the family.

The Matthews Volunteer Firemen and the Community Club members and their families enjoyed a potluck dinner at the Community Center on Saturday evening.

Arthur Gurley, a pioneer resident of this community but who for many years has lived in St. Louis, was recently admitted to the Bertrand Nursing Home. One of his sisters is Mrs. Ella Gurley Presson who now makes her home with a daughter in Florida. Mr. Gurley was accompanied from St. Louis by Mr. and Mrs. Claude Council.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Stone and grandson, Christopher, of Belleville, Ill. visited a few days last week with her mother, Mrs. L. D. Waters, who has been ill at her home here.

The Matthews Cub Scout Pack number 53 held their monthly meeting on Dec. 11 at the Community Building. The Cub Scouts of Dens 1, 2, 3, and 4 who received their Bobcat Badges were: Bryan Richards, Benny Hoggatt, David York, Phillip Reeves, David Vaughn, Steve DeWitt, Jimmy Parker, Steve Middleton, Michael Richards, Herbert Lathum, Kenny Petigo, David Andrew, Roger Kennedy, Gary Chessor, Douglas Scott, Keith Bewley, Reuben White, and Dennis Burch.

A. R. Curtis was admitted to Missouri Delta Community Hospital this week as a medical patient. Mr. Curtis's grandson, Kerry Lasters, was dismissed Saturday from the hospital where he had been treated for pneumonia.

Disabled Can Collect U.S. Benefits

CAPE GIRARDEAU - People who are disabled may be cheating themselves out of a source of income, according to Clifford W. Forsee, manager of the Cape Girardeau Social Security Office. "We still see disabled people lose benefits because they don't come in to inquire soon enough, even though the social security disability program has been in effect for 14 years."

Forsee explained that the benefits are lost because benefits can be paid retroactively for only one year. Therefore, a person who files in January 1970 may be paid back only until January 1969, even though his disability might date back several years.

Disability benefits may be paid to totally disabled workers who are not yet age 65 and whose disability has or is expected to last a year or more, Forsee said. Payments may also be made to wives and children of workers who qualify for disability benefits. In addition to workers, benefits may also be paid to adult disabled children of social security beneficiaries as well as disabled widows past age 50.

Forsee explained that to qualify for disability benefits, a worker must be disabled to the extent that he can no longer perform gainful work. For additional information, phone, write, or visit the social security office located at 339 Broadway, Cape Girardeau, Mo. Offices at Kennett and Flat River, Mo. are also open Monday through Friday except legal holidays.

Only U.S. Supreme Court justice ever to decline the chief justiceship was William Cushing, who did so in 1796.

Of Interest to Homemakers

By FREDERICKA PLUMMER
Area Home Economist

CHARLESTON - If you were a victim of frozen water pipes during the recent zero weather, you realize what it means to be without water for a short time. Did you have your emergency supply stored?

Emergencies can arise at any time. Something happens to the plumbing, so the plumber has to turn off the water while he makes the repairs. If you don't have a supply of water stored, in this case you can run some out to use while the work is being done. However, storm or other emergencies may not provide enough warning.

You should store enough drinking water for several days. Each member of your family will need at least one quarter of water per day for drinking. Two to three times more is needed for washing hands and utensils. How many gallons would your family need to store?

You may store water in different kinds of containers. Plastic jugs with tight fitting caps are best. Save your empty plastic containers to use. The one-gallon size takes little shelf space and is easy to handle. Be sure containers are clean. Fill them from a safe water supply.

Metal containers sometimes rust and often give water an unpleasant taste. Glass jugs need occasionally for leaks. undesirable odor or taste. Replace with fresh water from time to time.

Your house probably has a reserve supply of water. Your water heater or pressure tank will supply many gallons if they can be drained. Toilet tanks and pipes also have usable water.

Your body's most important need is for water, so be prepared for emergencies. Get water containers and fill them.

If You Were the Judge

Woman's Looks Can Be Legally Deceiving

By Jack Strauss, LLB

Calvin met a blonde who was so curvacious that she practically had him drooling throughout their entire courtship. On their wedding night, however, she stepped behind a screne in their hotel room and began tossing out each of her "charms" - a wig, false eye lashes, false fingernails, false teeth, a padded bra, false hips and a corset that could have drawn whistles without anyone being in it.

When she finally reappeared from behind the scene, Calvin's bride had a figure that favorably rivaled that of any seriously 14 - year - old boy.

At first stunned by what he saw, Calvin quickly regained his composure and made a bee - line for the nearest courthouse where he demanded an annulment on the grounds of fraud.

"I married a work of art," he told the judge, "only to discover that she was a work of construction. Had I known the truth, I'd never have married her."

"Nonsense," answered Calvin's wife. "In the battle of love, a woman has the right to make herself as alluring as possible. That's not fraud, that's battle tactics."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you free Calvin from his shapeless wife and grant him an annulment?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that during courtship, a woman need not tell her intended spouse that she used devices or other attachments to improve nature's work on her face and figure. A woman has the prerogative of making herself look as attractive as possible.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you,... do good to them that hate you. (Matthew 5:43-44)

PRAYER: Dear Father, deliver us from following the easy way of returning evil for evil. Strengthen us in will and spirit to obey the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount. We ask Thee for strength to love our enemies. In the name of Christ, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven ... Amen."

Republicans for Funding Schools

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The minority Republicans of the Missouri House said that full allotments should be made to the public schools in March rather than providing more than $7 million for a maximum security prison.

Minority leader, Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R- Clayton, said in a GOP statement Gov. Warren E. Hearnes would be manipulating school laws if he tried to draw on later tax receipts to make a fourth payment to schools in April rather than sticking to the statutory three with the final one not later than March 15.

"Faithful observance of present laws," King said in the statement, "would clarify that the No. 1 responsibility in Missouri is to public education.
